Drivers and Walkers
Why Industries Grow
Travel by Rocket
One Gambler Jumps

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1929, King Features Synd., Inc

BOOTLEG WHISKEY, "home brew" and automobile accidents are related.

Drunken drivers kill many. Everybody knew that.

Now Dr. Norris, chief medical examiner of New York city, says that "drunken walkers" cause accidents for which the automobile industry is blamed.

Dr. Norris urges that reckless walkers be fined, and adds "25 per cent of adults hurt by automobiles are intoxicated."

An observer of high finance says industry progresses rapidly "because sons of very rich men play polo and golf, neglect business, inherited from their fathers, and allow abler men to extend and develop the business."

That is true in some cases. No Vanderbilt runs the New York Central Railroad, no Ryan manages street car lines, no J. J. Hill descendant manages great railroads in the West. But it isn't true always.

For instance, John D. Rockefeller, Jr., not conspicuous on the golf course or polo field, runs successfully the biggest business in the world, turned over to him by his father, now past 90.

And the American Tobacco Co. is run with an extraordinary success, to which its competitors testify, by a very young man, George W. Hill, who inherited the job from his father.

Here and there young men inherit ability and ambition with great wealth, but not often.

It is easy to succeed in spite of poverty.

It is difficult to succeed in spite of wealth.

A courageous German inventor, Fritz von Opel, takes the first ride in an airplane driven by rockets and lives to tell about it.

Science discusses the possibility of a journey to the moon inside a rocket fired with force sufficient to escape the earth's attraction.

Fritz von Opel has actually travelled one mile and a quarter in 75 seconds, in an airplane driven by the rockets exploding in the rear.

Explosive force of chemical preparations is a little uncertain for travel. But that airplanes will fly some day carrying no gas engine or fuel is probable.

Some future Marconi or Edison will find a way to send wireless power into the air, enabling fliers crossing the continent to borrow power from Niagara, Rocky Mountain waterfalls and other power plants on the way.

In this column you have seen the advice: "Don't gamble." W. J. Keyes, vice-president of the C. A. Earl Radio Co., New York, neglected that advice.

On Monday, he attended a directors' meeting; yesterday he jumped from the window of a high building and died. To his mother he had written: "Last April I was worth $100,000; today, I am $24,000 in the red."

He lost $124,000 in stock gambling in one year, and is one of tens of thousands. DON'T GAMBLE.

Invest wisely in American securities and in America's future and you will prosper.

Gamble, and you'll lose.

Wilbur D. Huston, brilliant boy from Seattle, 17 years old, today begins his scientific career at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, chosen by Thomas A. Edison as the brightest young man in the country.

Everybody wishes him success, and he will have it.

Thousands of other boys may comfort themselves with the knowledge that they have as good a chance as this young man, and perhaps better, although nobody selected them "to succeed Thomas A. Edison."

Edison at 17 was working for a small salary, never went to any institute of technology, never was SELECTED, but SUCCEEDED.

Among men working at benches in overalls, mechanics in big factories, white collar men that think as they work, one will be the real Edison of the future. You can't select genius.

We are creatures of impulse, and our impulses are usually foolish.

The old-fashioned advice, "Count 10 before you act in anger" would save many from trouble.

John G. Bennett bid four spades and "went down." His wife called him "a foolish player." He slapped her. She shot him dead and will be tried for murder.

STORM WHIPS N. E. COAST WITH FURY

Vessel Torn From Mooring Is Dashed Against a Bridge; Many Boats Beached

A 40-mile northeast wind, accompanied by heavy rain, lashed the New England seaboard today, driving three schooners ashore in Boston harbor, damaging a fourth and beaching scores of yachts and small craft.

The highest tide of the year, with the wind behind it, swept over shore roads all along the coast, flooding cottages and inundating large areas.

The wind blew over trees and tore down electric light and telephone wires in several places. Surf at Winthrop and along the South Shore beaches was the heaviest of the year.

The high winds and rain reaching Boston shortly after midnight were the advance guard of the diminishing tropical disturbance moving up the coast from Florida, the weather bureau reported.

MORE WIND COMING.

They will continue, with increasing intensity, until the storm center passes Boston about midnight, according to the weatherman.

The Doris M. Hawes, Gloucester swordfisherman standing out of the harbor for her home port, went aground on Middle Bank and for a time was in danger. She was floated, however, on the exceptionally high tide.

An unidentified fishing schooner went shore on Governors Island and was floated on the tide by members of the City Point Coast Guard station.

A second unidentified schooner, not a fishermans went shore on Apple Island. Her distress was reported to the Coast Guard by observers on Long Island, but she was refloated without assistance on the flood tide.

The junior naval training ship Harvard, moored off the Army Base at South Boston, was torn loose from her mooring and dashed against the Summer st. extension bridge suffering considerable damage.

BOATS ARE BEACHED

Capt. Frank E. Holbrook with a crew in the C.G.3099 went to her assistance and managed to anchor her safely.

All along the Dorchester and South Boston beaches sailboats and power craft which snapped their mooring lines in the wind were tossed high and dry.

Five boats were washed up on Savin Hill beach and two went ashore at Carson beach.

At Savin Hill, the 40-foot speedboat, Gar Wood Commuter, owned by Dr. Melcher of the Massachusetts General Hospital staff, broke her moorings and was cast upon the beach. A 42-foot cabin cruiser that went to her assistance became stranded.

The 30-foot cruiser Foxy and the 40-foot R sloop, Lamont, snapped their riding lines and drifted down

Big Lobby Probe Is Ordered

Washington, Oct. 2 (AP)—Activities of the Southern Tariff League and of groups interested in Muscle Shoals legislation were named today by Senator Caraway, Democrat, Arkansas, for inclusion in the Senate investigation of lobbyists.

Washington, Oct. 2 (INS)—A far-reaching investigation into all forms of congressional lobbying—which annually accounts for the expenditures of millions of dollars in Washington—appeared imminent today as a result of the Senate's adoption of the Caraway resolution.

The Senate judiciary committee, of which Senator Norris (R.), Nebraska, is chairman, was authorized to conduct the inquiry and no strings were tied to the committee's activities.

There was widespread speculation in Washington today as to how far the committee will go. If it decides to go thoroughly and exhaustively into the subject there may be a succession of scandals that will make history, for it is conceded that lobbying of all kinds has increased tremendously in the capital since the war.

The committee will decide the limits of its investigation. A meeting will be held in a few days to

HUNDREDS FLEE GEORGIA FLOOD

Aiken, S. C., Oct. 2 (AP)—Power dams at the cotton mills at Van Cluse and Graniteville in Horse Creek Valley burst early today and flooded part of the mill towns. No loss of life was reported.

Augusta, Ga., Oct. 2—The flood waters of the Savannah river, unleashed when a great hole was torn in the Augusta dyke, were slowly flowing over low sections of the city today, driving hundreds of residents to higher ground and wreaking serious damage to property.

The river has already reached a flood stage of 46 feet and a crest of 48.6, the greatest in history, is predicted within the next few hours.

With swirling waters pouring through the rent in the dyke above the city, thousands of acres of surrounding territory are under water, and unless a sudden and unexpected halt comes, the central section of Augusta will be flooded.

Free Entry at Port for Congressmen

Washington, Oct. 2 (AP)—The treasury today issued orders that congressmen and other high government officials are entitled to free entry when they return from abroad on government business, and to courtesy of the port when they return from pleasure trips.

The instructions supersede previous orders.

2 Missionaries Are Kidnaped in China

Peiping, China, Oct. 2 (AP)—An official announcement today said two British Chinese missionaries were kidnaped September 10 in southwest Kweichow province by troops engaged in civil war. The British authorities have made representations to the Nanking and Kweichow governments.

Halifax, N. S., Oct. 2 (AP)—Twenty-three buildings had been destroyed in Woymouth, Digby County, by a fire which was still burning today, according to reports reaching here before telegraph lines went down.

HUB WINS FIGHT FOR LEGION CONVENTION

Vote Made Unanimous as the Los Angeles Delegates See Bay State Is Winning

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 2 (AP)—Boston won the 1930 convention of the American Legion today.

The balloting, which was expected to be a long drawn out affair, was cut short by the Los Angeles representatives, the only other contenders for the honor, withdrawing when all indications pointed to selection of the New England city. The Californians moved that the selection of Boston be made unanimous and their motion was carried.

Just prior to the balloting Miami, Fla., presented an invitation for the 1930 convention, but it was tabled on recommendation of Herbert Kidler of Montana, chairman of the committee on the next convention. He recommendd that only Boston and Los Angeles be considered.

VOTE WAS 748 TO 406.

The Miami invitation was regarded as a move designed to win the next convention in case the Boston-Los Angeles fight developed into a deadlock.

The motion to make unanimous the selection of Boston was made by Clarence L. Kindkead, department commander of California, when it was seen how the vote was going. The actual vote later

3 Killed, 19 Hurt in N. C. Mill Rioting

Marion, N. C., Oct. 2 (AP)—Three men were dead, at least one other dying, and 14 others were in the General Hospital here today through a strike riot at the gates of the Marion Manufacturing Company's cotton mill early today. Five other persons were suffering from less serious wounds from pistols and clubs.

The riot followed a strike of part of the night force called by the United Textile Workers' Union because it was claimed the owners of the plant had failed to keep agreements made when a nine weeks' strike was settled two weeks ago.

The dead men and 15 of the injured were shot. Sheriff O. F. Adkins and three deputies were painfully beaten.

The walkout occurred without notice at 1 a. m. At 6:30, when the shifts changed, workers entering and leaving the mill were accosted by pickets. Several fights started. Then some one fired a shot.

A fusillade followed in which Sam Vickers and Randolph Hall union members fell dead. Twelve union men, two nonunion men and a deputy sheriff were taken to the Marion General Hospital with bullet wounds.

No one was able to say where the first shot came from. Sheriff Adkins denied the shot was from his forces. He said he thought it came from the picket line. He said he was certain some of the

Dolores Costello Expecting Stork

Hollywood, Cal., Oct. 2 (AP)—Dolores Costello, motion picture actress, in private life Mrs. John Barrymore, has announced her retirement from the screen—for the time being at least.

The reason, she and her husband said, was the expected arrival of an heir or heiress in the Barrymore household.

'QUEEN POLLY' AND 2 HELD AS WOMAN TELLS OF VICE

Three new arrests and the revelation that 1000 girls a year are brought to the white slave ring's houses in Boston today featured the vice cleanup resultnig from the investigation of the killing of Samuel Reinstein.

Those taken into custody by Deputy U. S. Marshal Joseph Winston are Morris and Ida Stein, already out on bail, against whom additional charges of violating the Mann act were placed, and Pauline Lavigne, known in the underworld as "Queen Polly."

Information concerning the number of girls "working" local houses on the ring's circuit was obtained from Elizabeth "Petty" Martin, sweetheart of Harry Malaga, who was arrested in Easton, Pa.

She was also understood to have told authorities that traffic over the entire circuit, consisting of more than a score of cities on the eastern seaboard, was amazing.

Betty was brought from Pennsylvania, where she was being held, under heavy guard. Accompanying her were Inspector Timothy Donovan of Boston, who has been in the Keystone State some weeks on orders of Dist. Atty. Foley, a deputy marshal, a Department of Justice agent and a matron, all from Philadelphia.

The girl had been informed by telegraph in Pennsylvania that Atty. Matthew J. McGrath would act as her counsel, and he was waiting in the Federal building for her arrival.

She was immediately closeted with officials for questioning, however, and after her statements had been made she was taken before Judge Brewster, who fixed bonds of $2500. Asst. U. S. Atty. Hubert Thompson thought this amount too small, and she was taken back before the court, who increased the bonds to $5000.

She was then removed to a small room in the office of the U. S. marshal on the second floor of Young's Hotel, temporary federal building, without having seen anyone but officials.

COUNSEL APPEARS.

Into the marshal's office stepped Atty. William H. Lewis, who announced to Asst. U. S. Atty. Thompson that he represented Betty Martin and wanted to see her.

"You are not counsel for Betty Martin any more than I am," replied Thompson.

Lewis then raised his voice for the benefit of the newspapermen in the room and said:

"I want everybody to notice that I came here at 12:10 o'clock and my client is being held incommunicado."

There followed some conversation in an undertone between Lewis and Thompson, after which the lawyer was permitted to see the girl.

In a few minutes he emerged with a smile and stated there was no question but what he was counsel for Miss Martin.

According to the U. S. attorney's office, Lewis and Atty. McGrath also represent Joe and Pauline Lavigne and Rose Restant. Lewis has also announced he represents Harry Malaga, held by the district attorney.

Attys. Daniel Shea and Leo F. Rogers represents Morris and Ida Stein.

Detectives John Stokes and Joseph Ferrari of the State police were today called to the Federal building and went into conference with Asst. U. S. Atty. Thompson.

Their presence was considered significant in view of the fact that they were responsible for a vice investigation during the administration of Governor Fuller.

The Steins were arraigned before Commissioner Jenney on charges of conspiracy to violate the Mann Act by transporting girls from Atlantic City to Boston on July 1.

LAVIGNE HELD, TOO.

They pleaded not guilty, and were released in bonds of $500 each.

Lavigne, who is divorced from Pauline and remarried, living in Elmont st., Mattapan, was arraigned with his former wife on similar charges, both waiving examination and pleading not guilty. Lavigne was released in $500, but Pauline, who had surrendered earlier in the day, was required to provide $5000 bonds, which she did.

The Martin girl has been arraigned in Pennsylvania after being arrested.

New arrests, of more importance than that of Joe Lavigne, picked up

KILLS 2, SELF IN VERMONT

Burlington, Vt., Oct. 2 (AP)—A double slaying and a suicide were revealed here today with the finding of the razor-hacked bodies of Mrs. Elizabeth Mosse, her son, Edward, 31, and his niece, Marion Greenough, 9, in the Mosse home.

Mosse was believed to have killed his mother and the child Monday night and then, after taking a quantity of poison, slashed his own throat.

Fox Theaters to Have Ear-Phones for Deaf

Springfield, Oct. 2 (AP)—Ear-phones for the hard of hearing are to be installed in all the Fox theaters throughout the country, according to a letter which Mrs. F. A. Chamberlin, president of the Springfield Speech Readers' Club, an organization for the hard of hearing, has just received from William Fox.

The letter was written to Mrs. Chamberlin acceding to her request to put such ear-phones into the theater in this city, which has just been purchased.

Seize Rum on Three Ships in Fall River

Fall River, Oct. 2 (AP)—Customs officers swooped down on three vessels and seized considerable contraband, both liquor and merchandise. Duty fines were assessed and paid.

The vessels raided are the British steamer Virgilia, the Norwegian tanker Sildra and the American tanker Swiftlight. The contraband was taken to Boston.

PARKER TAKES HAND

One man, admired and feared throughout the underworld for his influence and his many "rackets," was said to be under surveillance by Department of Justice agents.

Another, proprietor of disorderly houses, known as "The Chinese," was expected to be taken within a few hours.

Capt. George A. Parker, registrar of motor vehicles, entered the case today as a result of information given him by District Attorney Foley, Assistant District Attorney Doyle, U. S. Attorney Tait and his assistants, Hubert Thompson and John W. Schenck.

It has been learned that the records in the registrar's office contain many falsifications, made in obtaining licenses for gunmen and runners of drugs and women. Two inspectors from the registrar's office conferred with Attys. Thompson and Schenck, and Narcotic Agents Joseph V. A. Flynn and John Coffell.

GIRL QUIZZED AGAIN

"Betty" Martin, sweetheart of Malaga, held as the driver of the car in which Reinstein was "put on the spot," was again questioned regarding the case. She was with Malaga on the last ride of the New York racketeer, and was one of the last persons to see him before he was shot from behind in the dim corridor of the Hotel Huntington.

Margaret Wheeler, consort of Reinstein, was also to be questioned again today by Thompson on matters which have developed in the past 24 hours. She is out on bail from Roxbury court on a statutory charge which involved the slain racketeer and "cadet."

Carl Forman, alleged New York bond thief, who was captured in his rooming house in Huntington ave. during the hunt for Reinstein's slayers, was to be returned today to New York, having waived extradition.

Forman was grilled for knowledge of the slaying when police recognized the name "Sam Harris," by which he was registered, as the same name used by Reinstein in Easton, Pa., and other places.

He will face a charge of larceny of $512,000 in bonds in New York. All but $50,000 has been recovered, police said.

When first questioned Betty refused to believe that Malaga had given the authorities any information, but was soon convinced and agreed to talk. A stenographer was called in and she gave a statement containing much valuable information.

Her home is in Pottsville, Pa., where members of her family still reside, her father being dead. The girl said she came to Boston June 28 and lived with Malaga at Hotel Arlington until September 21, meantime working in Boston houses of the white slave circuit.

B. & M. Sets Freight Movement Record

A new record of freight service efficiency on the Boston and Maine Railroad was set last week when the Boston and Maine operating forces moved 22,070-ton miles of freight in each hour of freight train operation.

This figure is equivalent to the movement of a ton of freight in one hour a distance of 22,070 miles, or 90 per cent of the distance around the world.

Gives Duce $200,000 to Restore Relics

Rome, Oct. 2—Admiration for Premier Mussolini prompted Samuel H. Kress, New York department store owner, to present $200,000 to the premier to be employed in the restoration of a number of Italy's architectural monuments.

Kress was introduced to Mussolini by Sir Joseph Duveen, English art expert.

upon the abutment of the Old Colony Boulevard drawbridge.

Drawtender Harry Mahoney raised the draw in time to let the sloop ride through undamaged and secured her on the leeward side of the bridge. James Butler and Peter Magee, Dorchester Yacht Club members, and Thomas J. Watson, a fireman, secured the Foxy.

Several sloops near the Army Base were torn from their anchorage and carried down the L st. channel. Dock employes put off in motorboats and saved most of them before they were damaged. There was a 14-foot tide at the Army Base.

Dories, tenders and small boats of all descriptions came to grief, were washed ashore and in many instances broken up.

In Florence st., Somerville, the wind carried away the tops of two trees which, falling, landed on telephone wires, tearing them down and snapping off a pole.

ONE PLANE COMES THROUGH

The scene was adjacent to the Prescott grammar school and a police guard was placed around the wires until repairs were made.

With one exception all planes about Boston remained on the ground. Fred Ames came through from North Easton to Muller Field, Revere, with 100-foot ceiling. Frank Crowley, flying the mail, was at Bethany, Ct., waiting for the weather to clear.

Members of the City Point Coast Guard station worked tirelessly from soon after midnight when the storm began to raise havoc among the huge fleet anchored off the South Boston yacht clubs.

The entire crew of the station and all three patrol boats were pressed into service and as fast as one crew would return from a job they found another awaiting them.

SHIPPING TIED UP.

Similar conditions were reported along the north and south shores. Shipping in general was either delayed or at a standstill as a result of the increasing storm and the weather bureau's warning of worse to come.

Weather conditions delayed the arrival in Boston of the transatlantic liners Cleveland, Norwegian, City of Mandalay, Canadian Scottish and Atago Maru. The Norwegian, due today from Manchester and Liverpool, had not reported by wireless.

The disturbance was central at daybreak over Raleigh, N. C. Atlantic City was receiving a forerunner of the storm with a 56-mile-an-hour wind and 1.98 inches of rainfall in eight hours.

The storm hit New York, Long Island and Jersey points today. Numerous towns and villages reported flooded cellars and streets.

The Hudson and East rivers are having the highest tides of the year. One and three-tenths inches of rain have fallen in New York in 24 hours. At Sandy Hook there was a 40-mile gale.

Northeast storm warnings for the lower Great Lakes region were issued by the Weather Bureau at Cleveland today. A wind velocity of more than 30 miles an hour was recorded for Lake Erie.

Orange Water Works Station Is Burned

Orange, Oct. 2 (AP)—Damage of $25,000 resulted from the burning of the pumping station of the Orange water works at Holtsville early today from undetermined cause. The machinery as well as the brick building are a total loss. Insurance amounts to $7000. The fire will not cause a shortage in the town water supply, as the reservoir is full.

Time Out for Fleeing Thief Laid Low by Flying Tackle

Pawtucket, R. I., Oct. 2—The football season found Patrolman Fred Rylands in excellent condition.

Rylands chased Frank Womack, who took time out of a local jewelry store in the shape of a pocketful of watches.

Womack refused to stop for revolver shots and was about to score a getaway over backyard fence when the patrolman left his feet in a flying tackle.

Time was then taken out for Womack and when he came to the game was over or up or on ice, and he was in the cooler.

Hamburg and North Augusta, in South Carolina, across the Savannah river, were flooded. In many cases only the roofs of houses and buildings arvisible.

The towns have been evacuated, the residents coming here.

Precautions against a possible human toll have been taken. Foodstuffs, clothing and medical supplies have been placed in centrally located places. Public buildings have been converted into temporary living quarters for the homeless.

Reports reaching here from upper districts of the flooded area indicated additional torrents pouring southward. This, it was feared, might mean a crest even greater than is predicted.

Six More Deaths Added to Force of Hurricane

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 2 (AP)—As the fury of the tropical gale blew itself out somewhere near the Virginia capes today, six deaths were added to the seven it took at Nassau Bahamas last week before it circled the Florida peninsula, turned inland near Pensacola and headed northeastward across Alabama and Georgia.

In addition, the storm's progress across northwestern Florida, southeastern Alabama and Central Georgia was marked by a trail of tangled communication lines, halted rail and roadway traffic, and, in scattered localities, damaged homes and buildings.

A half dozen southeastern Alabama towns are without power and light, while virtually all highway and rail traffic in eastern Georgia is at a standstill.

Two negroes were reported killed on a highway near Port St. Joe, Fla.

Stay Unspoiled, Dawes Tells Flag Champs

By FLOYD E. WILLIAMSON

Escort of the American Flag Champions Going Around the World as Guests of the Hearst Newspapers.

London, Oct. 2—A message from Gen. Charles G. Dawes, American ambassador to Britain, was ringing in the ears of the four youthful American flag contest champions when they sailed for home on the George Washington from Southampton.

The four youngsters found Mr. Dawes in a characteristic pose, at the American Embassy, puffing his underslung pipe.

He spoke frankly and forcefully to them, saying:

"The flag contest was a great thing. But don't let it spoil you. Writing your essays and answering the questions was splendid, but many others did that.

"Unless you realize that you'll have to do many other things in life to win other things, the ones who didn't win this trip will get more out of it than you."

The young Americans were greatly impressed by the Ambassador's friendly advice.

The champions spent their last day in England in whirlwind fashion. They saw Kensington Gardens, London Tower, the Temple and Law courts and Fleet street, and watched the guard changed at Buckingham Palace.

BAUER PLANS A SHAKEUP OF LYNN POLICE

Mayor to Become the Acting Chief and Launch a Big Drive on Vice Resorts

"I am going to appoint myself acting chief of police of Lynn and when I assume that office I will shake the Lynn police department to its foundations," said Mayor Ralph S. Bauer today.

He made this statement a few minutes after notices had been posted in Lynn police station announcing an examination of candidates for the position of chief of the department, October 17 at the State House.

Chief Thomas Burekes retires October 8. Mayor Bauer said he would become acting chief as soon as Burekes leaves harness and will start to clean up Lynn at once.

"The first thing I will do as acting chief will be to shift every member of the department," said the mayor. "Then I will conduct a vice crusade that will rock the Shoe City. My crusade will be aimed at all forms of vice.

"One of the first things I will do will be to drive 'the destroyer' from the streets of Lynn."

"What do you mean by 'the destroyer,'?" asked a reporter.

"Teh man who cruises about the streets in an automobile trying to pick up girls," replied the mayor.

"I will ask the women of Lynn to give me the automobile numbers of every motorist who tries to pick them up and I will prosecute the men to the limit. My crusade will also be directed against women motorists who endeavor to pick up men to go riding with them.

"And last, but not least, there will be no more petting in parked automobiles within the limits of the city of Lynn. That must go."

LEGION TO MEET IN BOSTON

was announced as Boston 748, Los Angeles 400.

Recommendation that the Americancan Legion come to a definite decision on the question of a separate Government Department of Aeronautics before laying the matter before the various under secretaries in charge of aviation in Washington, was made in a report of the special aeronautic committee.

The committee, headed by C. E. McCullough, general traffic manager of the Pennsylvania Railroad as chairman, with Col. A. J. Dougherty, U. S. A., as secretary, stated that "there is a very serious need of developing aviation," but that two schools of thought had developed in the committee.

TWO VIEWPOINTS

One view is that aeronautics so far as national defense is concerned should be independent of the present Army and Navy. It favors a single department of national defense with a Cabinet officer at its head, and sub-secretaries for land, water and air forces, with a fourth sub-secretary heading a bureau for procurement of men and materials.

The other viewpoints, developed in conferences among committeemen, was that a separate department of aeronautics should be created with a cabinet officer at its head, this department to take charge of the air forces now under the Army, Navy and Department of Commerce, and develop defense and commercial aviation.

The committee report stated that while it was instructed by the 1928 convention to confer with the proper congressional and other committees relative to aeronautics, it had developed no such committees had the subject in hand, and that lacking funds the Legion committee had been forced to determine the stand of its members by correspondence. It asked that its report be filed and it be discharged.

Several resolutions recommended memorials to war veterans, and one asked that the Legion work out an enlarged program for the education of war orphans.

Mayor Nichols, when informed the convention was coming here, said:

"It is a great victory for the city of Boston, one for which the administration has worked for long over a year, with 100 per cent cooperation between the municipality and the American Legion.

"I went to the Legislature a year ago and got authority to spend $25,000 if the Legion would select Boston for its convention in 1930.

"The city is greatly indebted to the efforts of George H. Johnson, director of public celebrations, for the earnest and untiring efforts which he devoted toward bringing the legion here.

"Mr. Johnson went to Louisville and stayed on the job all day and all night until he "sold" Boston to the legion. Mr. Johnson carried with him my invitation to present to the convention to come to Boston."

J. F. Daily to Visit K. of C. Councils

John F. Daily, special representative of the supreme council of the Knights of Columbus, is scheduled to visit five Massachusetts councils of the order next week.

Monday he will be at Back Bay council, Tuesday at Ave Maria in Quincy, Wednesday at Dorchester Lower Mills, Thursday at Cohasset and Friday at Vallaloid in Lynn.

'William Tell, Jr.,' is Shot as Apple Is Missed

A rainy day performance of "William Tell," staged in a Lynn barn today, nearly resulted in serious injury to Joseph Murphy, 8, of Collins st., who was cast in the role of the junior Tell.

Alfred Howard, 8, his pal, playing the lead, leveled his air rifle at the apple resting on Joe's head but the first shot went low and struck Joe's chin.

The performance ended abruptly, Joe departing hastily for his home. He declined to tell who Tell was until cross-examined by Patrolman Francis Walsh. The rifle was taken from Alfred and Joe was taken to a doctor's office.

PLEADS HAZING END AT B. U.

Following an edict by the manager of a Boston hotel that Boston University sophomores would be no longer permitted to "torture" freshmen on the front steps of the hotel—the Boston University News, student publication, has organized a campaign to abolish the ancient custom.

"Hazing of freshmen as it now stands is casting ridicule on the College of Business Administration," declared the News editors. "It has been carried to an extreme this year.

"The spectacle of one boy singing 'Sweet Adeline' with an empty gallon jug in his hand while standing on the business school's back steps is a specimen of the unsupervised hazing which has been going on."

CALL WISEMAN IN SHEARER INQUIRY

Peer Called British "Spy" by the Navy Lobbyist Will Testify to Senate

Washington, Oct. 2 (AP)—On the verge of an expected call for a new naval limitations conference, the Senate Shearer investigators today had clamped down the brakes on their inquiry into what took place two years ago at the unsuccessful Geneva conference.

Meanwhile, the Senate itself, spurred by disclosures made in the Shearer inquiry and statements that efforts have been made to influence tariff legislation, has directed its judiciary committee, headed by Senator Norris of Nebraska, to conduct a general investigation of lobbying under the sweeping terms of the Caraway resolution. When it will begin its sessions remains to be decided.

Committee members are considering a so-called document, handed to it by William B. Shearer, the $25,000 "observer" at Geneva for the shipbuilders, and with it a report from the navy intelligence which Senator Allen, Republican, Kansas, says disputes its authenticity. Other ramifications of the picture that has been drawn up by the various witnesses also are being sized up, and it is the opinion of the committeemen that most of the leading actors must again take the witness chair.

Shearer named Sir William Wiseman as the author of the British document and he described this man as "the chief British spy in America during the World War." He said Wiseman is now with Kuhn, Loeb & Co.

Mr. Wiseman promptly telegraphed Chairman Shortridge that the paper was an "absurd forgery."

discuss the situation and map out plans. A sub-committee of probably five members will be appointed to conduct the inquiry.

The powers granted the committee are broad and include consideration of every kind of effort by paid agents to influence legislation—from the individual who attempts to obtain higher tariff duties on specific commodities to the professional reformer who agitates in the halls of Congress the institution of Sunday "blue laws" and more drastic prohibition legislation.

MAY PROBE THE DRYS

Liberals and anti-prohibitionists in Congress have long demanded investigation of the activities of the Anti-Saloon League and other professional reform organizations which maintain extensive layouts here. Similarly, the drys have demanded investigation of the numerous organizations that have sprung up to agitate for modification of the Volstead act.

In other directions the field is almost limitless. The farm bloc has demanded the investigation of the manufacturers' lobby, especially active since the beginning of the tariff fight; the industrialists report that farm lobbying should be investigated; there are innumerable demands for investigation into the "big navy" and "little navy" lobbying; it has been charged the "radio" trust maintains an expensive lobby.

Dallinger to Introduce Federal Lobby Curb Bill

Washington, Oct. 2—Modelled upon the Massachusetts law, a bill will be introduced this week by Congressman Dallinger of the Bay State, calling for registration of all lobbyists and their employers.

The proposed legislation has plenty of teeth to curb present lobbying, Congressman Dallinger said.

Wooed, Won, 'Fooled' by Mother of Aimee

Seattle, Oct. 2 (AP)—Details of an alleged "whirlwind courtship" involving the Rev. H. H. Clark, former Seattle minister, and Mrs. Minnie E. Kennedy were due for an airing in court here today in Clark's $50,000 breach-of-promise suit against the mother of Aimee Semple McPherson, evangelist.

A judicial order excluded from the courtroom girls under 18 years of age during the taking of testimony.

The former Seattle minister testified that he first met Mrs. Kennedy in a Seattle motion picture theater and described some of their subsequent meetings in hotels and restaurants here. Clark charges that Mrs. Kennedy, under the alias of "Mrs. Klark," wooed him persistently, promised to marry him and agreed to build him a tabernacle here and equip a "gospel ship" for evangelistic work along the Pacific coast. He alleged she later refused to keep her promises.

Clark broke down and sobbed when he described the mental reaction which he said he experienced when he found Mrs. Kennedy had "deceived" him.

"I'd rather have a red letter on my breast than seared into my soul," he faltered. "I felt I must tell all. I felt as if a moral hit-and-run driver had struck me and sped away in the darkness."

Clark contended that he was so completely compromised by Mrs. Kennedy that he could "never take another wife." He also said in his complaint that her failure to marry him had wrecked his plans for religious work.

John S. Robinson, attorney for Mrs. Kennedy, characterized Clark as the "lowest, most contemptible criminal known to law—a blackmailer."

Fuller Curbed Wilson, Saved Independents, Says Taxi Man

SAYS POLICE HEAD ACTS AS 'CZAR'

Would Have Wiped Out I. T. O. A. but for Ex-Governor, Asserts Maymie

Police Commissioner Wilson exercises the power of a czar over taxicab operations in Boston, the special commission investigating the cab station was told today.

There is more power vested in the commissioner in his regulation of taxis than there is in the President of the United States in his official duties, Maymie said.

"I think everyone will agree that the President cannot do everything he wants, but judging from our experience it is apparent that a Boston policeman can," he remarked.

The charge was made by George Maymie, treasurer of the Independent Taxicab Operators' Association.

Wilson revokes licenses with no chance for appeal and but for former Governor Fuller would have put the Independents out of business, said Maymie.

"If the Governor had not interfered the police commissioner would have wiped out our organization in a month," Maymie told the commission.

The witness contended that open taxi stands with consequent reduction in overhead expense, would tend toward a reduction of present taxi fares.

He scored police for "drawing a picture of the I. T. O. A. men as bandits, bootleggers and outlaws." Police testimony was an insult to respectable women telephone operators on duty in the Troy st. garage, he said.

While it is true gambling takes place in the street near the garage, Maymie told the commission, the responsibility to prevent it rests at the door of the police.

Radio Used to Call Son to Dying Father

Radio stations throughout New England today came to the aid of Joseph O. Gagnon of Newburyport, who is dying at Homeopathic Hospital and calling continually for his missing son, Joseph, 38-year-old World War veteran.

Five years have passed since father and son last saw each other. When last heard from the son was in the Merchant Marine service and stationed at Newark, N. J. That was about a month ago.

His friends believe that the veteran may be "somewhere at sea" and attempts will be made to communicate with vessels plying between Atlantic coast ports.

Hospital Adds to Site for Building

The Boston Floating Hospital has purchased from William H. Bunton the properties at 4, 6 and 8 Nassau st., consisting of 6303 sq. ft. of land, upon which are three dwelling houses. The total assessment is $21,000, of which $12,600 is on the land.

The property adjoins 16, 20 and 22 Ash st., which were purchased by the hospital early in July. An area of 10,448 sq. ft. now is owned, upon which it is planned to erect a modern hospital early in the spring.

The sales were negotiated through C. W. Whittier & Bro.

CHINESE PUMP AIR INTO BODIES OF PRISONERS

Beat Them to Death With Sandbags, According to a Message to Moscow

Moscow, Oct. 2 (AP)—New tales of Chinese cruelties to Russian prisoners were received today in a dispatch to Tass, official news agency, from Khabarovsk, quoting Soviet refugees from northern Manchuria.

The dispatch said the Chinese subjected their prisoners during cross-examination to beating and unspeakable torture by pumping air into their bodies and subsequent flagellation with sandbags.

There were a number of executions. Fifteen bodies were found near Harbin and six others were taken from the Sungari river. In every case identification was next to impossible because the heads were gone.

Prison camp conditions were described as atrocious. The camps are overcrowded; only bread and water is served, except when a visit from the German consul impends. Then tomatoes are added to the diet. Many prisoners arrested at night time are clad only in underwear. Diseases—typhoid, dysentery and scarlet fever are prevalent.

Cantonese Advance on City of Wuchow

London, Oct. 2 (INS)—Cantonese forces advancing upon Nanking are expected to occupy Wuchow in the near future, an Exchange Telegraph from Hong Kong today stated. The troops hope to effect a bloodless seizure of the city. The American consul at Wuchow has been advised to send all women and children out of the city.

2 SPRINGFIELD GIRLS MISSING

Springfield, Oct. 2—Local police were today conducting an intensive search for two girls who disappeared from the Y. W. C. A. Sunday afternoon and are believed to be in Boston.

The girls are Eleanor Otis, 19, daughter of Mrs. Lucy A. Otis of Bowles st., and Elsie Nicodemus, 17, whose home is said to be in Ohio.

They were last seen, as far as could be learned, on Sunday night begging a ride to Roxbury from the driver of a New York-Boston bus, who referred them to a truck driver, bound for Boston.

The identity of the truck driver was not learned, but police believe the girls were successful in getting him to take them to Boston.

Police talked with the cashier of a local restaurant who was said to have been seen in the company of the girls on Sunday afternoon, but she was unable to give them any information. The girls had $16 between them when they left the Y. W. C. A.

Son Gets Dr. Rice Estate

Middletown, Ct., Oct. 2 (AP)—The will of Dr. William N. Rice, geologist and theologian, was admitted to probate today. The estate, valued at about $42,000, is left to Dr. Rice's son, Prof. Edward L. Rice of Ohio Wesleyan University.

RITZY CHICAGO CLUB BOMBED

Chicago, Oct. 2 (AP)—In a year of nearly 100 bombings, last night's dynamite attack upon the Lake Shore Athletic Club was the first against a fashionable and exclusive group. The bomb was tossed through a window of the $6,000,000 clubhouse, tearing a hole in the wall of the natatorium.

Police were investigating two theories, one that the bombing may have been by terrorists employed by garage racketeers disgruntled over the fact that members of the club used an adjoining vacant lot to park their cars. The other theory was that rival cab drivers had resorted to violence to show their dissatisfaction over giving the club business to a single company.

The bombers, in automobile, were seen as they tossed the bomb by a cab driver, who pursued them but was outdistanced.

A second powerful dynamite bomb exploded later in front of the door to the apartment of C. H. McCarthy, at 7119 South Shore Drive. McCarthy, an official of Stein, Alstrin & Co., New York and Chicago brokers, told police he knew of no motive. Members of the household were thrown from their beds.

Rain Cancels Outdoor Fair at Brockton

Brockton, Oct. 2—All outdoor events at Brockton Fair were called off today because of heavy rain.

Instead of the 60,000 expected spectators there were not more than 1000 at the fair at noon and it was said not many more were on their way there.

Those who attended remained inside the fair buildings watching the judging of poultry and cattle and in viewing the numerous exhibits.

Officials of the Fair said they expect to collect $25,000 "rain insurance" because of the downpour which caused a postponement of nearly all features until tomorrow. Tomorrow's program will begin at 10 a. m. instead of 1 p. m., so that the chief events on today's program may be run off.

Today indoors the farmer exhibited the fruits of his harvest for this was Grange day.

Tomorrow he will return to the soil for another year with more labor saving machinery, that his crops in another fall may be better.

A raw, northeast wind prevailed on the first day of the fair, but it failed to keep some 25,000 youngsters, whose day it was, from attending.

The Brockton schools, as well as those in Abington, Rockland, Whitman and other nearby towns, were closed for the occasion.

The three Curtiss Cossacks, Ralph Wickford, Al Sherman and Adolph Backstrom, thrilled the crowd with their aerial circus overhead, while the youngsters staged an exhibition of model aircraft on the ground.

INTEREST IN RACES

Although a strong wind prevailed throughout the day, Forrest Rye, Curtiss Flying Service parachute jumper, performed by leaping from the cabin of the huge 14-passenger, tri-motored Ford plane.

In the second heat of the 2:16 trotting race, Sweet Echo, owned by W. K. Carson of Quincy, and driven by Hal Brusie, broke the track record of two minutes and seven seconds by a quarter of a second. Sweet Echo had finished the first heat of the race in sixth place.

Moko McKlyo, also owned by Carson, did well in the three-year-old pacing race. Allen J. Wilson of Boston had two entries in the 2:12 trotting race, Pax Volo, driven by Bunch, and Colonel Bidwell, driven by Steele.

Society attendants were attracted by the horse shows, held in two enclosures at either end of the quarter-mile stretch of the race track. Handsome geldings, mares and stallions, driven by some of the best society horsemen and horsewomen were entered in the shows.

TOMORROW BOSTON DAY

The new Industrial Building drew other sections of the throng, as did the 4-H Club, boy and girl scouts exhibits and the aviation building. Farm machinery exhibits provided farmers with the latest in agricultural implements.

A miniature railroad, drawn by tiny steam locomotives, was another busy section. New York Central Lines engineers drove the trains and did a rushing business.

Tomorrow will be Boston Day, Friday Governor's Day and Saturday will be New England Day.

Mayor Ralph S. Bauer of Lynn declined, without thanks, an invitation to attend the fair on Governor's Day. He explained that he had no silk hat or long coat and had not yet "joined the high-hat nobility."

Third Tragic Death in Same N. H. Family

Rochester, N. H., Oct. 2—Funeral services at St. Mary's Catholic Church, for Paul T. Riley, aged seven, marked the third time in as many years, that a member of the family had met with a tragic death.

James Riley, the father of the boy, was crushed to death while at work in the Rochester yards of the Boston & Maine, about two years ago, and a brother of the young lad was killed in a gunning accident. Last week Paul fell from a tree and a ruptured appendix resulted. He failed to rally after an operation.

Police Car in Crash as Machines Skid

A police automobile operated by Patrolman Joseph O. Digman and a private machine driven by Joseph Sloane of Washington st., Roxbury, collided at Tremont and Ruggles sts. today, both cars skidding on the wet pavement as they attempted to avoid the crash.

The fenders of both machines were damaged, but the occupants escaped injury. Patrolman John J. McNichols was a passenger in the police car.

Debts Keep Him 'Too Busy' to Face Court

Frank W. Petzo of East Weymouth was so busy earning money to pay his debts he didn't have time to appear in Middlesex Criminal Court today to pay a fine.

He was found guilty on September 27 of driving an auto in a manner to endanger the lives of the public. Court continued the case until today, indicating that a fine of $100 would be imposed.

When the case was called, Clerk Ralph N. Smith presented the judge with Petzo's check for $100 and a note which read, "Sorry I could not be there in person as I am so far in debt now I cannot possibly take any more time off."

Court refused to accept the check and ordered Petzo to appear.

FALL IN PLEA FOR DISMISSAL

Washington, Oct. 2 (AP)—Albert B. Fall, Secretary of the Interior in the Harding Cabinet, and central figure in the naval oil lease cases, today appeared in the District of Columbia Supreme Court to enter pleas for dismissal of a charge of bribery against him.

Fall's pleas were contained in a printed pamphlet to which he made affidavit. Two of the pleas argued the exact fact involved in the present case had been involved in the case tried three years ago, and that the fact had been fairly submitted to a jury. The other two pleas contended that to retry Fall constitutes violation of his constitutional rights.

Fall's trial is scheduled to begin next Monday, but the former Secretary of the Interior was arraigned at his own request.

What Ails the Men of This Land? It Is Spectatoritis!

New York, Oct. 2—One trouble with American men, in the opinion of Dr. Jay B. Nash, is spectatoritis.

He told a recreation conference that there is a problem in adult recreation; new activities must be sought for adults of leisure on the participation basis, not the spectator basis.

Move to End Orange Plant Strike Fails

Orange, Oct. 2 (AP)—Fruitless efforts were made today to settle a strike of 200 employes of the New Home Sewing Machine Company, which began yesterday in protest against a wage cut running from 15 to 30 per cent.

The company is operated by the Free Sewing Machine Company of Rockford, Ill. Those on strike include the piece workers in all except the needle department and tool room. A strike committee today conferred with Superintendent D. S. Drysdale. A further conference will take place tomorrow.

Amherst in Need of Water and Gets It

Amherst, Oct. 2 (AP)—A break in the main supplying the town has deprived householders of water since yesterday afternoon, and while workmen were engaged in repairing the break residents welcomed the heavy downpour because of the opportunity it afforded to impound limited quantities of rain water.

Two small districts that depend upon wells were not affected. It was hoped to resume service some time today. The firemen were kept on duty until after midnight last night to meet any emergency and the schools with two exceptions were closed today.

Physical Test for All at Brown

EXTEND SCOPE OF FARM BOARD SERVICES

Washington, Oct. 2 (AP)—The federal farm board is broadening its organization to meet the increasing demands for farm relief.

The board has taken steps to educate farmers to the advantages of co-operative marketing and the disadvantages of surplus production.

A banking division to handle loans from the $500,000,000 fund has been created and the co-operative marketing division of the Agriculture Department has been transferred to the board by President Hoover to stimulate organization of co-operatives.

In addition, an educational campaign to teach farmers, 75 per cent of whom are not in the movement, how to operate co-operatives, is getting under way with the assistance of the Agriculture Department's extension service and the land grant colleges.

Although the loans of about $40,000,000 already made mostly are supplemental to advances by the federal intermediate credit banks on commodities, the board expects to be able to make loans for facilities to co-operatives to store crop surpluses as soon as they qualify.

The co-operatives which have not already qualified for loans will be investigated by both the banking and co-operative marketing divisions, to give the board reasonable assurance that the government funds will be returned.

Vacationists Hold Reunion on Monday

Center Harbor Vacationists will hold the annual reunion and dance of the organization in Catholic Union Hall Monday night.

L. A. Fearce, chairman of the committee, and Frank Sullivan, the secretary, are arranging details.

They are being assisted on the committee by Capt. Frank Crins, John Moore, Louis Howell, Frank Moccia, Tim Sweeney, Lloyd Perkins, Louis Leonard, Phil Lenney, Ducky Grennan, M. J. Walsh, James Danis, Timothy O'Leary, Dr. D. F. Pierce, Martin Hernan, William Butler, John Guiney, Joseph Crowley and John Smith.

APPLICATION OF RULE OF ELEVEN

Salient Points of Bidding

Auction: The Auction bidding requires no comment.

Contract: North, though holding No Trump support, bids two Spades because of this worthless Heart doubleton. South prefers to play the hand at No Trump because of the 4-3-3-3 distribution of his hand with all four suits protected and with but three Spades. Accordingly he bids two No Trumps instead of three Spades, and North, with ample strength to justify the bid, goes to three No Trumps.

The Play

West opens the 6 of Clubs, his fourth best card of the suit. Applying the Rule of Eleven, Declarer finds that East can have no card higher than the 6. Accordingly he wins the trick with Dummy's 8 in order to take the double finesse in Hearts immediately. The finesse of the 10 of Hearts succeeding, Declarer counts three Hearts tricks, assuming that West is not holding up, two positive tricks in Spades, two in Clubs and one in Diamonds, eight in all. The extra trick needed for game may be obtainable by a Spade finesse, or a second trick may be possible in Diamonds. The Spade finesse is taken first, East winning, returns a Club to his partner and North holds up the Ace to provide for the possibility that East holds still another Club.

West now sees the futility of establishing his Club suit, since he has no possible entry and since another Club lead will force a discard from East that might prove embarrassing. Accordingly he shifts to Diamonds, the only suit untried by the Declarer. Upon West's lead of the 10 of Diamonds, South holds up the Ace. West continues with a Diamond, East playing the Jack. Declarer takes the trick and throws East in with another Diamond, establishing the Queen in Dummy. East must now lead a Spade. South wins with the King and leads another Spade to Dummy's Ace. Declarer then makes Dummy's Ace of Clubs and Queen of Diamonds and East, squeezed in his discards, is forced to unguard Spades or Hearts giving the Declarer the last two tricks.

Had West continued with Clubs or switched to Spades instead of to Diamonds, game could equally well have been made.

Sacred Mirror Placed in New Jap Temple

Uji-Yamada, Japan, Oct. 2 (AP)—The ages-old ceremonies of the removal of the Ise shrines reached their climax this evening.

In a priestly procession, the treasures of the inner shrine, including the mirror of the Sun Goddess, were carried from the buildings that have sheltered them for the last 20 years, to the new temple 250 yards to the west, with rites like those of the Shinto priests 2000 years ago.

The pathway ran through a deep dark evergreen grove, lighted for this solemn occasion by the leaping flares of pine torches.

The procession was formed about the Sacred Mirror, believed by the devout to have come down through the ages from the Sun Goddess herself and to contain the spirit of that Deity.

It is the most sacred material object in all Japan. For ages, it is said, no human eye has beheld it, not even the Emperor, himself a divinity. It is in the custody of a few chosen priests, who themselves dare not remove the brocade covering. It is said that as the covering wears out, a new one is placed over the old, but the mirror is never uncovered.

Former Brockton Man Due for Riches

Brockton, Oct. 2—Somewhere there is a John F. Quinn, formerly of Brockton, who has just to step forward and receive a good portion of the oil-gained riches of his brother, George Quinn of Monterey, Mexico.

George landed in Brockton and started a search for John and a sister who has been married since George left town and he doesn't recall her married name.

FORMER KAISER TO LIVE IN GERMANY

London, Oct. 2 (INS)—The former Kaiser Wilhelm, exiled from his native land soon after the World War, is planning to return to Germany, it was reported in an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Amsterdam today.

The ex-Kaiser, according to the report, plans to dispose of his country estate at Doorn, Holland, where he has been in exile for ten years, and take up residence in the castle he has purchased from Count Imhoff at Coburg in Saxony.

Under the repeal of the Defense of the Republic act by the German Reichstag recently, the Kaiser is given permission to return to Germany, but previous reports stated that he wished to spend the remainder of his days at Doorn.

No news has been received at The Hague concerning the ex-Kaiser's reported intentions.

JOHNSON SPLIT WITH HOOVER ON TARIFF

Washington, Oct. 2—A spectacular attack by Senator Hiram W. Johnson (R.), California, on the President's taxing powers under the present tariff law featured the closing debate today in the Senate on Mr. Hoover's request for retention of the flexible provision.

Johnson, breaking openly with the President on this issue, declared the only question before the Senate was whether Mr. Hoover or Congress should exercise the taxing power.

He warned the Senate grave disasters had followed every other instance where the taxing power was conferred on an executive.

O. K.'s DEMOCRATIC PLAN.

The Californian endorsed the Democratic-insurgent plan for a flexible provision, in which the tariff commission would report direct to Congress and the latter body pass upon all changes in duties.

Republican leaders are worried over the move to eliminate from the pending bill the provision giving the President power to change customs duties. Johnson opened the seventh day of debate on the flexible provision.

Referring to what he termed "the power of concentrated wealth in the East," he said that Californians desirous of continuing the flexible tariff provision should have a care lest they adopt a policy injurious to their interests.

Asserting that Congress was dealing with a permanent policy, Johnson said the executive "may be from our locality and in sympathy with our needs but tomorrow the commission may belong to somebody else with an entirely different philosophy of levying tariffs."

WOULD LIFT CENSORSHIP

Amendments to the tariff bill to eliminate a section which would prohibit importation of books, pamphlets or other printed matter advocating treason or insurrection and containing threats against the life of an American citizen were formally introduced today by Senator Cutting, Republican, New Mexico.

Cutting announced sometime ago he intended to offer the amendments. He said he was convinced censors of the customs bureau were not competent to judge such books, and that reading matter of the American public ought not to be censored.

WHEAT LOAN IS CHALLENGED

Washington, Oct. 2 (AP)—The right of the Federal Farm Board to make loans to the proposed Farmers National Grain Corporation was challenged today by Senator Brookhart during examination of Sam R. McKelvie of Nebraska, wheat's representative on the board, by the Senate Agricultural Committee.

McKelvie said the farmers' corporation would not be prepared to function as far as effecting the price of wheat was concerned until next year.

Chicago, Oct. 2 (AP)—The National Grain Marketing Corporation, a $20,000,000 concern, proposed to co-operate with the Federal Farm Board, may be a working reality within a week, William H. Settle of Indianapolis, chairman of the committee authorized to effect the corporation's setup, indicated today.

PAROLE ASKED FOR RICH ANTI

Chicago, Oct. 2 (AP)—Frank Urbanowski, a wealthy wholesale grocer of Peru, Ill., whose parole from Leavenworth penitentiary was recommended in Washington today, was convicted with three others last April in a giant liquor conspiracy case developed by the government.

Federal raiders found a $100,000 alcohol cooking syndicate operating in Peru.

Urbanowski was accused of selling the sugar used in a huge still discovered on his property. He was sentenced to a year and a day in prison for manufacture, sale and possession of liquor, maintaining a nuisance and conspiracy to violate the national prohibition act.

Church Leader Hits Shearer as 'Sinister'

Springfield, Oct. 2 (AP)—Dr. Fred B. Smith, moderator of the National Council of Congregational Churches, in an address here before the Connecticut Valley Congregational Club, charged that the four big ship builders who employed William B. Shearer as their "observer" at the Geneva naval conference "knew they were sending out a sinister man to provoke war."

He also denounced Harry Sinclair as a potential menace to the peace of the world.

Fitchburg Man Leaves $462,000

Worcester, Oct. 2 (AP)—Albert H. Haskell of Fitchburgh left an estate of $462,920.51, according to an inventory filed in the Probate Court today.

Among the possessions of the deceased were 224 shares of American Telephone & Telegraph Company, with a value of $76,781.25, and savings bank accounts in Athol, Fitchburg, Gardner, Boston, Worcester and Winchendon banks.

Planes to Help Drive 3000 'Santa Deer' 1500 Miles

Nome, Alaska, Oct. 2 (AP)—With an airplane scouting for grazing grounds in advance, the most spectacular reindeer drive in the history of the industry will begin soon, extending from the Kotzebue Sound in Arctic Alaska to Kittigazuit Peninsula on the east side of Mackenzie delta in the northwest territories of Canada.

The herd will be composed of 3000 selected reindeer, purchased by the Canadian government from the Lomen Reindeer Company.

The route will be through an unpeopled, untimbered area of Arctic America, a distance of 1500 miles. It was estimated the drive would be in progress nearly a year and a half. Scouting planes will keep in touch with the expedition.

Kills Self After Long Preparation

New York, Oct. 2—Harry Jubler, Jr., 51, an insurance company actuary, ended his life after careful preparations for the past eight months.

He had set all of his affairs in order, rent on his apartment was paid until December and all of his bills were cancelled. He made his will and wrote instructions for his wife to follow after his death.

M'NAB TACKLES DRY LAW JOB AS CIVIC DUTY

Washington, Oct. 2 (AP)—As a patriotic duty of a private citizen, John L. McNab, San Francisco lawyer, has undertaken, at the request of President Hoover, the difficult task of formulating legislation to bring about better prohibition enforcement and relief of court congestion.

Mr. McNab has no official connection with the government, but was urged by Secretary Mellon, Atty.-Gen. Mitchell and Chairman Wickersham of the law enforcement commission, as well as the President, to draft legislation for submission to Congress in December that would centralize prohibition enforcement under the Justice Department.

WILL RECEIVE NO PAY.

Although describing it as a "burden," he said he felt it was his patriotic duty because no one "who has caught the spirit of the President on his ardent desire to make this country a law-abiding nation could, for a moment, hesitate to take up his task. The abuses which have accompanied enforcement of the dry law have brought the act into "unmerited disrepute," he believes, and have broken down the legal machinery through clogging of the courts.

Long a friend of the chief executive, and a guest since Monday at the White House, he regards the reforms suggested by the President as badly needed and has undertaken his task with the reservation that he will receive no compensation or reward. He will have at his disposal the findings of the enforcement commission.

STOP COURT CONGESTION

"It must be understood," he said, "that these reforms do not concern alone the enforcement of the laws in support of the 18th amendment. The proposal looks to the relief of the courts from their present congestion.

"The abuses which have undeniably accompanied the enforcement of the dry law have brought that act into unmerited disrepute.

"The legal machinery of the country has broken under the strain. Courts have been clogged, abuses have arisen and practises have developed which call for definite reform.

"That reform, the President proposes shall be prompt and effective.

"Congress will convene Dec. 1. By that time it is hoped that a definite plan with drafts of necessary laws will be ready for submission.

"Such is the wish of the President, and to the fulfillment of that wish I shall devote my fullest energy."

Fall River Auto Death Slate Clean

Fall River, Oct. 2—No fatal automobile accidents for Fall River during the month of September gives the city another month with a perfect record, State Highway Inspector John M. Young announced today.

There were no fatal accidents last month in Portsmouth, Tiverton and Little Compton, R. I., these three neighboring towns, just across the State line, having a perfect record for the year thus far.

Electric Railway Men Elect Shoup

Atlantic City, N. J., Oct. 2 (AP)—Paul Shoup of San Francisco, has been elected president of the American Electric Association. The Charles A. Coffin medal and $1000 donated by the General Electric Company was awarded the Chicago, South Shore & South Bend Railroad as the leading electric railroad in the United States during the past year.

Scotland's Church Merger Ratified

Edinburgh, Scotland, Oct. 2 (AP)—Union of the Church of Scotland and the United Free Church of Scotland was solemnly sealed and ratified amid impressive scenes today.

Dies of Heart Attack

New Orleans, Oct. 2 (AP)—Col. William B. Cowin, 54, commanding officer of the New Orleans army supply base, died today from a sudden heart attack.

TAKE OVER OLD ELECTRIC CO.

Pettingell-Andrews lighting fixture studio business is again under the ownership and management of Charles E. Price, Frank S. Price and associates.

The company was organized in 1887 and was incorporated in 1901.

The studios at 378 Stuart st. will be made one of the finest and most attractive for the display of domestic and imported lighting fixtures, lamps, shades, etc.

The officers of the company are Messrs. F. S. Price, president; L. W. Witbeck, treasurer; G. J. Creed, secretary. The directors are C. E. Price, chairman; F. S. Price, Marshall S. Price and L. W. Witbeck.

Frank K. Hirons and others, who have long been associated with the company, will remain on the sales staff.

Guard Los Angeles Promoter From Gang

Los Angeles, Oct. 2 (AP)—Armed guards protected Dist. Atty. Buron Fitts today as he continued an investigation into charges of graft and corruption in the Los Angeles police department.

Gangster threats, said to have been overheard by a police detective resulted in the protective measures. Capt. Thomas O'Brien said he had evidence that underworld characters plotted Fitts' death.

Safety Congress Elects Waban Man

The Massachusetts Safety Council received word today from the National Safety Congress, in session in Chicago, that one of its directors, C. E. Pettibone, of Waban, had been elected president of the national organization. Mr. Pettibone is vice-president of the American Mutual Liability Insurance Co.

11 ON PANTAGES JURY; STATE SPEEDS CASE

Los Angeles, Oct. 2 (AP)—The trial of Alexander Pantages, multi-millionaire theater man charged with criminally attacking Eunice Pringle, 17, dancer, moved swiftly forward today with eleven jurors tentatively selected and the prosecution laying plans to wind up its case in three days.

Dist. Atty. Fitts said the four men and eight women tentatively selected as jurors were acceptable to the state. The defense, however, removed one of the men with a preemptory challenge. The eleven remaining were placed under guard in hotel rooms.

The State opened the trial with a surprise move in the form of a motion to dismiss one of the two charges against Pantages. Fitts contended that should Pantages be tried on both the assault charge and a charge of assault by force upon a minor, complications might arise as the result of a recent appellate court ruling. He asked the latter count be dismissed. The defense objected, saying its plans would be upset.

But Judge Fricke ruled the defense was assumed to be prepared to combat both charges and agreed with Fitts that possible complications and a reversal might result in the event conviction were obtained on only one count. The dismissal was followed by an unsuccessful attempt by the defense to delay the trial.

Defense attorneys framed a group of quesions for examination of talesmen, for the most part perfunctory, but including one meant to find any prejudice against Pantages.

It was, "would you believe, with the same degree of credibility, the testimony of a 54-year-old man if it should be the only contradiction of a story told by a 17-year-old girl?" All veniremen answered "yes."

Jurors who admitted a prejudice against Pantages because his wife was recently convicted of manslaughter were excused.

SOVIET SCENTS GIGANTIC WAR

Moscow, Oct. 2 (AP)—War between Russia and the "capitalistic" powers on a gigantic scale, in which mass is pitted against mass, is still envisaged as a possibility by Communist leaders in Russia.

In a notable speech today at the congress of Soviet trade unions, Clement Voroshiloff, commissar for war and chairman of the revolutionary council, declared the Soviet union is surrounded on all sides by powerful class enemies, who are ready to attack Russia at any moment.

"The future conflict between the citizens of the Soviet Union and the imperialistic and capitalistic powers will be a tremendous mass war, in which the borders between the front line and the country behind will be wiped out.

"Adhering to our traditional policy of peace as the only sensible policy at this stage of our development, we must at the same time construct our economic system in such a way as to be ready at any moment to ward off the attack of our enemies."

Britain to Retain Palestine Mandate

Brighton, Eng., Oct. 2 (AP)—Arthur Henderson, British foreign minister, told the Labor party conference today order had been completely restored in Palestine and energetic steps taken to bring persons guilty in the recent rioting to trial, whatever race and creed.

He declared the British government had no intention of reconsidering the British tenure of its mandate.

3 Explorers Buried in Arctic Wastes

Ottawa, Oct 2 (AP)—Royal Canadian Mounted Police returned today after holding an inquest and funeral services in Arctic wastes where John Hornby, British explorer, and two companions died of starvation.

The officers buried the bodies, marked the graves with crosses and brought back notes and papers.

These include two chapters of a book by Hornby, entitled "In the Land of Feast or Famine," and a diary by Edgar V. Christian, who apparently was the last to succumb. The officers found the documents when they followed directions scrawled on the wall to "look in the stove."

Failure of the explorers to find caribou, upon which they had counted for food, resulted in starvation.

Fireman Dies in Crash

Waterville, Me., Oct. 2—Millard E. Goding, a member of the fire department, was killed instantly as the pumper on which he was riding and an electric car collided at the Maine Central railroad crossing in Fairfield.

Well, the Professor Said Something

Chicago, Oct. 2 (AP)—Dollar and a half words bounded around Dr. Wilhelm Pauck's lecture room at Chicago Theological Seminary to the dismay of 100 new students of church history.

As near as the students could figure, Dr. Pauck was knocking science.

"Science," he said, "has destroyed the geocentricism of the Old Testament." His statement left the class cold.

"Science," he went on, "has undermined the foundations of biblical anthropocentricism." This also fell on barren soil.

"And," said the professor, "it has repudiated the doctrine of original sin."

PLAN AIRPLANE SHOWROOM IN HANGAR

By GEORGE W. HAMBLIN

The first of its kind in the country, and the only one in New England, are the claims made by Fred Ames and Frank LeMan, of East Coast Aircraft Corp., for their airplane showroom which will occupy the front of the spacious new hangar being completed at the Boston Airport.

The idea of the showroom was conceived by LeMan, and after Fred Ames thought it over he decided that the time had come when a prospective purchaser of an airplane would be easier to sell if the ship were displayed in a comfortable display parlor.

The planes will be all shined up and sparklingly clean, and when the interested sightseer comes into the showroom he will be impressed with the airplane 50 times more than if the ship were in a hangar, or out on the dead line, all covered with grime and with oil dripping from the motor cowling.

The features of the new East Coast building do not stop with the showroom. The rest of the structure is just as complete as anything in the country. To the right of the showroom, from the airport side, are the offices of the East Coast outfit, and also those of Boardman Aviation Corp., Cape Cod dealers of the Travel Air.

As is to be expected, Fred Ames will have the office fronting on the airport, with large windows all around, from which to view all his little and big Travel Airs as they go Travel Air-ing.

COMPLETE MOTOR SHOP

Then comes the hangar, with a capacity of 17 planes, and in the rear of the whole works will be the most complete airplane motor shop in New England.

East Coast are Wright Service agents and sole purveyors of service for the famous Whirlwind engines in New England. The shop, located in the rear of the building, will be large enough to take seven engines in the sliding scale of overhaul.

H. E. Wallis, formerly chief of maintenance for Colonial, when the air mail first started in 1926, and later holding down the same job with the old Boston Airport Corp., and then Curtiss, is in complete charge of all service work. "Wally," as he is called, has imported the complete system used by Wright at Paterson, N. J., for overhauling motors.

The card index, which shows at an instant just what is happening to different engines, is in charge of "Andy" Anderson, who was a first sergeant in the army at the airport for many years before he was retired. Fred Ames just couldn't see "Andy" go away from this town after all the years he spent here, so "Andy" found himself working for Fred, and completely happy with the experience.

REPAIR PROCESS

Well, to get back to the repair department. When an engine comes in for an overhaul, it will start on one end of the line, and in successive stages, pass right along until the completely rejuvenated engine is wheeled on its carriage out to the test room, an exact duplicate of those used at the Wright factory.

This test stand is built into the structure, and the operator who is running the motor will sit outside a shatter-proof window, in a little booth, and keep a close check on the functioning of the Whirlwind, or Gypsy, whichever the case may be.

After the engine has been run in and is pronounced fit for service, the owner will be presented with a series of charts, telling him how much the engine turns up, how much gas it uses per hour, and its oil consumption. The owner will thus know at a glance just what his motor will do, and will not have to rely upon guess work when he takes the job out of the shop.

The new building will be completed in about 30 days, and will then be open to public inspection. When it is finished it will be well worth your while to go over and take a look.

While the building is being constructed, East Coast is operating a temporary shop at Muller Field, Revere, and every instrument used in the Wright factory for motor repairs will be found at this shop. The place, small though it is, is an indication of what the new home of East Coast will be a month from now.

This boy Ames has found the right time to go into aviation on a large scale, and is going about it right.

Have you seen the Curtiss Cossacks perform at the Brockton Fair? Al Backstrom, Ralph Wickford and Al Sherman are the boys who turn their Fledgling planes inside out in formation for the edification of the spectators at New England's greatest fair.

Val Chick, the fog flier from Gloucester, who hauls them for two cents a pound at the airport, started out in the face of poor weather reports for Detroit in his trustworthy Challenger.

Ishbel May Spend Time as Whims Dictate

Washington, Oct. 2 (AP)—Except for attending official functions of state, Ishbel MacDonald may spend her time in Washington seeing it as she chooses.

Coming to the United States only as the daughter of her illustrious father, and not as his official hostess, she will be bound to no set program. Her entertainment is being left in the hands of her hostesses, Mrs. Hoover and Lady Isabella Howard. They as yet have accepted no invitation for her.

Miss MacDonald's first afternoon and evening will be filled. She will go to the White House to be received following her father. She will return to the embassy for a quiet dinner, and probably will be present with her father at a press conference.

She and her father will lunch with the Hoover family Monday. She will attend the state dinner at the executive mansion Monday night and will have luncheon with her father at the Canadian legation Tuesday. That evening she will attend the dinner and reception at the British embassy.

PUBLIC-OWNED RATES CUT

Hudson, Oct. 2 (AP)—A reduction of about 25 per cent, the second this year, in electric light rates was announced for Hudson and Stow today by the commission of public works, which controls the management of the Municipal Light & Power department.

The new rate is a cut of one cent a kilowatt hour. The first 20 kilowatt hours in Hudson will be seven and one-half cents.

The next 180 will be three and one-half and more than 00 will be two and one-half. A discount of half a cent will be allowed on prompt payment of bills.

Photos Flashed to Planes in Germany

Berlin, Oct. 2 (AP)—Successful transmission of photographs to airplanes by wireless was made today for the first time in Europe, when the Lufthansa radio station at Tempelhof airport sent three photographs to an airplane flying high above Berlin.

An Associated Press correspondent aboard the plane watched the photographs come in.

The first was a weather map showing the weather which would be met by a pilot flying from Tempelhof to Cologne, over the regular air route from Berlin to Paris.

The second showed storm conditions, and the third was a photograph of the landing field at Tempelhof showing a rain-soaked section of the airport where a landing would be difficult for a pilot.

The photographs received showed only slight variation from the original in all cases, and the reception was effected within five minutes by an ordinary radio set equipped with a small apparatus known as a "fultograph."

FACISTS FIGHT WITH U. S. TARS

London, Oct. 2 (INS).—The Daily Herald printed a dispatch "from the Italian frontier" today saying that Italian Facists including members of the Italian militia attacked members of the crew of the American Dollar liner President Van Buren at Genoa, inflicting serious injuries upon some of them.

The London office of the Dollar Line is without confirmation of the reported attack.

According to the Daily Herald dispatch, several members of the crew, including the boatswain, Stephen Edwin, of Baltimore, were treated for injuries in a hospital.

STON AMERICAN COOKING SCHOOL

est Increasing in ooking School

d attendance at the Martha Lee Free Cooking he Imperial Ballroom of the Hotel Statler, is further f the great popularity of this series of lectures. Cookhousework were lifted by the lecturer, Mrs. Lilla P. rom the realm of tiresome and unromantic drudgery enjoyable and instructive revelation as to possibilities foods, new recipes, new methods and new appliances.

bstantial portion of Monday's dance returned for the sec-class. Mrs. Cross justifies her ional reputation for conducting school with equisite charm, simplicity and real educational benefits. It would be hard to imagine a more delightful occasion than one of these classes, designed to bring pleasure and practical ideas to any women interested in such daily problems as marketing, budgets, diets, variety in menu planning and the urgency of saving time and labor in the routine of running a home.

The recipes prepared by Mrs. Cross on the platform before her audience were:

Upside down cake, fruit and nut mixture, cream puffs, chocolate eclairs, fried filet of fish, spaghetti Italienne, frozen date and nut pudding, French crullers, shrimp salad, essentials in making good tea.

The keynote of the cooking school is implied in its name, and cookery in all its ramifications is discussed in a manner calculated to give those present something tangible to take home in the way of ideas for simplifying this complicated and often monotonous function in housework.

FOR NEW METHODS

If the modern home is to keep abreast of progress in every other department of modern living, such as improved house-construction, improved plumbing and better heating devices, then all the departments of better cookery and housekeeping must free themselves of obsolete methods.

Mrs. Cross' demonstrations, therefore, are planned to cover such far-reaching subjects as scientific food buying, variety in menus, balanced meals, diets and child feeding. For instance, cheaper cuts of meats have great possibilities for preserving their nourishing values and in appetizing preparation.

Again, there are only a few dozen different vegetables for use in menu planning, but women thoughtlessly get into a rut with only a half-dozen of them, and urgently need, for their own sake, if for no other reason, a reminder of other dishes to relieve the monotony of luncheon and dinner every day throughout the year. Mrs. Cross constantly emphasizes the necessity of variety, not only in selection, but in preparation, and the enthusiasm of her audience has been proof that her ideas are absorbingly interesting and useful.

INCREASES CONTENTMENT

Just as important as selection and preparation in making cookery more interesting and less tedious are the improved conveniences of kitchen appointments. Tools make for nimble fingers, better utensils save time and give better results, a place for everything and everything in its place saves steps, and proper control of cooking heat, together with uniform cold in preserving foods, all make for easier finances and shorters hours in housekeeping.

Mrs. Cross unhesitatingly stands for modern methods and improved devices. The kitchen is the center of the household, and up-to-date utensils and enlightened cookery must prevail if standards are to be raised and tiresome hours relieved for the broadening interests of social and cultural life for the self-sacrificing wife and mother.

The contentment and happiness of the whole family are increased just insofar as the housewife can and does apply progressive methods to her household duties. All such principles were very delightfully discussed and demonstrated yesterday by Mrs. Cross in an atmosphere of anecdote and humor, and to the very apparent enjoyment of all the women present.

Thirty-five market baskets were awarded to the lucky gift winners, together with cakes and dishes prepared at the demonstration.

At Monday's session the following ladies were awarded bountiful market bags:

Mrs. John O'Kane, 85 Brighton ave., Allston; Mrs. L. J. Robicheau, 33 Falmouth st.; Mae F. Mitchell, 10 Stockwell st., Roxbury; Katherine Conally, 18 Clayton ave., Medford; Mr. R. N. Corey, 672 Broadway, South Boston; Mrs. Charles Dolan, 28 Willard st., Chelsea.

TRY THE NEWEST CEREAL

ONCE in every blue moon something new dawns on the food horizon, and I try to be among the first to find it out and pass the good word along to my friends.

This time it's a brand new cereal, and when I, who am by nature no especial lover of cereals, tell you that I'd rather have a dish of these fluffy flakes then the tastiest chop, you can believe that they are Good, spelled in all capitals. I'm most forgetting that quite important item—their name. It's Kellogg's Rice Crispies—and if you think they are like any rice you have ever seen on land or sea, you are vastly mistaken. They are tiny, light balloons of crispness, a cross between nuts and popcorn in flavor, with all the zest of the nuts and the lightness of the corn. With top milk and sugar, they make an ideal breakfast cereal, and methinks would be delicious for luncheon floated in a bowl of milk or atop soups, ice cream or in candies. We are going to get very well acquainted with this new member of the cereal family, and will have more to tell you of it later.

Two fine cakes

and a new cake-making secret

If you have been in the habit of using only butter in your cakes, it may, at first, be a little hard to understand how Crisco can make cakes that you simply can't tell from butter cakes. But it's true!

One taste of Crisco just as it comes from the can will tell you why. Did you ever imagine a shortening could be so sweet and fresh?

Now, don't you understand why more and more fine cooks are using Crisco alone in all their cakes? Especially so when you discover how quickly and thoroughly Crisco blends with the other ingredients, giving you lighter, more tender cakes with a nice, even texture.

Date Cake

⅔ cup Crisco
1½ cups brown sugar
4 eggs
2¼ cups flour
4 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
1 teaspoon salt
1½ cups dates, stoned and cut in small pieces
¾ cup milk

Cream Crisco and sugar together. Add well-beaten eggs and mix well. Mix and sift flour, baking powder, cinnamon, nutmeg and salt and add alternately with the milk to the first mixture. Beat thoroughly. Add dates and mix well. Pour into a greased tube or loaf pan and bake in a moderate oven (350° F.) 50 to 60 minutes. Cool. This cake may be frosted, if desired.

Featherweight White Cake

⅓ cup Crisco
1 cup sugar
⅔ cup milk
2 cups flour
½ teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons baking powder
3 egg whites
1 teaspoon vanilla

Cream Crisco. Add sugar gradually. Stir in alternately milk and sifted dry ingredients. Fold in thoroughly stiffly beaten egg whites. Add vanilla. Turn batter into 2 greased layer cake pans. Bake in a moderate oven (350° F.). Ice with any desired icing.

(To make it into a Lady Baltimore Cake, use a filling of dates, figs and nuts moistened with lemon juice, and ice with boiled icing.)

These recipes have been tested and approved by cooking authorities. You will get best results by using level measurements and the ingredients specified.

CRISCO is used in the Cooking School now being conducted by this paper

Mrs. Lilla Pauline Cross, in the American Cooking School, makes a point of modern methods in cooking. Naturally, then, she uses Crisco, the modern shortening. Not only is Crisco easy to use; in addition, it helps you secure better, surer results.

Crisco is the registered trade-mark of a shortening manufactured by The Procter & Gamble Co.

A QUICK LUNCH RECIPE

QUICK TO PREPARE

"PULL down the curtains and lock the doors—unexpected company is coming," becomes more than a joke to the woman taken unawares by friends or in-laws when she knows that her cupboard is bare.

Even the housewife who does not keep a completely stocked emergency shelf, however, usually can find in her pantry a can of tomatoes, a couple of eggs and a box of crispy crackers. If she's fortunate enough to unearth half an onion and maybe a faded green pepper she can still achieve a delicious emergency dish equally good for Sunday night suppers, luncheons, bridge parties, etc.

Technically, this is called Mexican Rarebit, and it is made by melting 2 tbsps. butter and cooking in it until tender, 1 tbsp. of finely chopped onions and 2 tbsps. of chopped green pepper. It will take about five minutes for the vegetables to cook slowly.

Then add 2 tbsp. of flour, stir well and add 1 cup of milk. Stir constantly until you have a smooth sauce, letting it boil 1 minute. Then add ¼ lb. of cheese rubbed through the grater and stir until melted.

Now add 2 cups of stewed canned tomatoes to the cheese sauce and beaten yolks of 2 eggs, ½ tbsp. salt and a dash of cayenne. Last of all fold in the stiffly beaten whites of the 2 eggs and bake for 30 minutes in a moderate oven.

Serve on those popular Sunshine Krispy Crackers that have a place in every pantry. These crackers belong to the saltine family and a package in a pantry means preparedness against most of the emergencies the homemaker is heir to.

They are ideal to serve with a soup course or, brushed with butter and a grating of cheese and paprika and browned in a hot oven, are a handsome accompaniment for salads.

They have a place in school and business lunch boxes, too, with a favorite sandwich spread. And on the luncheon table as a foundation on which to pour creamed dishes, relish, etc.

Summer or winter, there is no better going-to-bed bite than a glass of milk and two or three of these crisp, delicious crackers.

FINE COOKIE RECIPES

DAINTY combinations of color, unusual flavors and attractive garnishing set these confection cookies in a class by themselves.

DATE SWEETMEATS

1 cup sugar
3 eggs unbeaten
1 cup nuts
1 cup dates cut medium fine
2 tbsps. melted butter
1 tsp. baking powder
¼ tsp. salt
5 tbsps. pastry flour

Add sugar to eggs. Mix. Add butter. Stir in dates and nuts, then flour, salt and baking powder sifted together. Spread about 1 inch thick in well-buttered shallow pan. Bake in slow oven (300 deg. F.) 1½ hours. Cut in squares and roll in powdered sugar.

FROSTED SQUARES

½ cup butter
1 cup white sugar
2 eggs, well beaten
½ tsp. vanilla
1½ cups flour
½ tsp. baking powder

Cream butter with sugar; add eggs, vanilla and flour sifted with salt and baking powder.

FUDGE SQUARES

1 c. sugar
2 eggs (beaten)
2 squares unsweetened chocolate
¼ tsp salt
1⅓ c. pastry flour
1 tsp. vanilla
1 c. chopped nut meats

Cream butter and sugar together thoroughly. Then add the chocolate, which has been melted. Stir in rest of ingredients. Mix well. Line a square pan, about seven inches, with paper—grease with butter and spread mixture about one-half inch deep in pan. Bake at 375 deg. F. for 30 minutes. Cut into squares immediately after removing from the pan.

The domestic help problem is solved by taking a kitchenette apartment and the best are advertised daily in the For Rent columns.

COCONUT DROPS

3 egg whites
1 tbsp. flour
2 tbsps. butter
1 c. confectioners' sugar
2 tbsps. cocoa
2 or 3 cs. coconut
2 tsps. vanilla

Beat egg whites until stiff. Stir in sugar, cocoa and flour previously sifted together. Add coconut, vanilla and melted butter. Drop by spoonfuls on greased baking sheet. Bake in moderate oven (350 deg. F.) for 15 minutes. This recipe makes two dozen cookies.

ROLLED PECAN WAFERS

½ cup butter.
1 cup brown sugar.
2 eggs.
4 tbsps. flour.
½ cup pecans (chopped).
½ tsp. salt.
½ tsp. maple flavoring.

Cream butter and sugar together. Add beaten eggs and flour and mix well. Add nuts, salt and flavoring. Drop by teaspoons on greased cookie sheets about 5 inches apart. Spread out very thin with back of spoon. Bake in slow oven (300 deg. F.) 10 or 12 minutes. Remove with a spatula or broad bladed knife and roll while hot over round handle of wooden spoon.

B. U. German Class Arranges Outing

Students of German at Boston University's college of practical arts and letters will hold their annual outing Saturday at the Walpole farm of Professor and Mrs. Joseph N. Haskell, Gertrude Mahen, club president, has announced.

Included in the outing program will be the official investment of robes of office to Lillian Buxbaum of Brookline, recently appointed student government representative.

Railway Leaders Honor Dana of 'L'

Edward Dana, general manager of the Boston Elevated Railway, was elected a member for three years of the executive committee of the American Electric Railway Association, at its annual convention at Atlantic City.

Since 1921, Dana has been chairman of the committee on education, now the committee on industrial relations, of the association. He is also a member of the committee on rapid transit and street traffic.

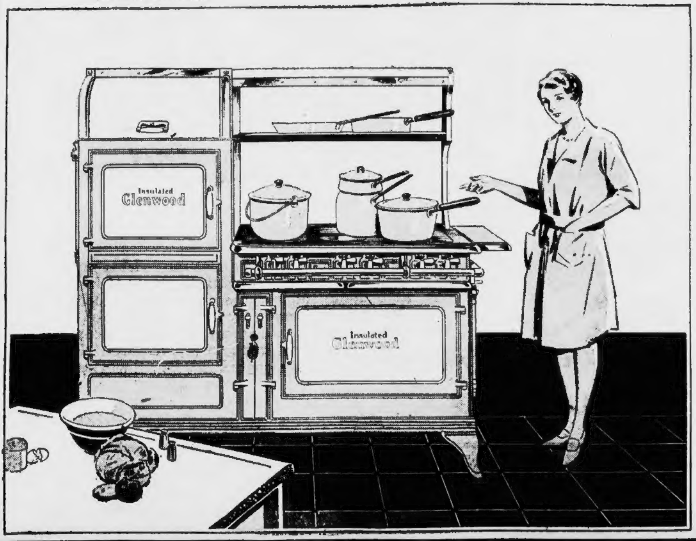
Two Glenwood Insulated Gas Ranges will be Given Away!

Gas ...THE BETTER FUEL FOR QUICK-HEAT AND ECONOMY



At the Martha Lee Cooking School

All Insulated Glenwoods Have the AutomatiCook

Every woman who attends the Martha Lee Cooking School at the Hotel Statler this week will have a chance to be presented with a brand new Insulated Glenwood gas range.

The range you may be lucky enough to win is the S-318 Model. It is fully insulated and is equipped with the Glenwood AutomatiCook to watch your baking while you're busy. It has four large burners in the cooking top and a wonderfully convenient warming closet for keeping things hot.

The range used by Martha Lee for all the cooking done at these lectures is also an Insulated Glenwood . . . the new extra-capacity De Luxe Model. This is the first time that this newest and finest of gas ranges has been publicly shown in Boston. It is also on special display at the Brockton Fair. Many of its features will be entirely new to even the most up-to-date New England housewives.

1. The new Vertical Broiler, for instance, which broils with radiant heat from both sides at once.

2. "The Shelf that Cooks," with three grills that cook without burners simply by utilizing surplus heat that is ordinarily wasted.

3. The "OurWay" top with its six enclosed burners and its solid, level cooking surface on which all the utensils you'll ever need can easily be moved about.

You will see delicious things perfectly cooked with the help of the Glenwood AutomatiCook that controls the heat of both of the great insulated ovens of this De Luxe Range. Don't miss this chance to win a Glenwood at the Cooking School.

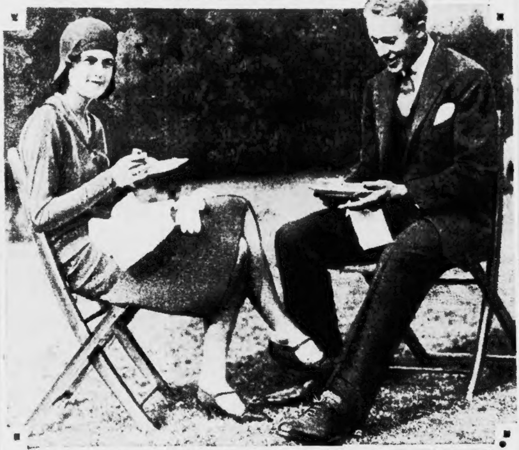
Miss Barbara Proctor to Be Presented at Tea-Dance on Friday

MISS HELEN STREETER will have charge of the bevy of 24 debs who will pour at the tea-dance at which Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Proctor of Commonwealth ave. will introduce their daughter, Miss Barbara Proctor, next Friday afternoon. Blythewood, the Swampscott summer residence of the family, will be en fete for this occasion. The girls who will preside at the tea tables, where 400 guests will be served, are Miss Edith Mitton, Miss Barbara Wendell, Miss Ethel Crew, Miss Margaret Ives of Salem, Miss Mary Allerton Cushman, Miss Dorothy Austin, Miss Marien Duane, Miss Rosamond Holton, Miss Dorothy Hall, Misses Carolyn and Charlotte Cosby, Miss Mary Elizabeth Lowe, Miss Mary Cool, Miss Phoebe Russell, Miss Carolyn Day, Miss Mary Curtis, Miss Elizabeth Mitchell. Also pouring will be three of next year's debs—Misses Betsy Scott, Elizabeth Loder and Mary Frances McKey.

MISS HARRIET BREWSTER of Dedham and Miss Charlotte Wood of Cambridge will be among the attendants who will surround Miss Beatrice Flint when she becomes the bride of Benjamin Brewster, son of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Emmons Brewster of Dedham, on Sunday, October 13. The First Congregational church of Montclair, N. J., will be the scene of the ceremony which takes place in the afternoon. Mrs. Calvin Aurand of Minneapolis will be matron of honor and the other bridesmaids will be Miss Nancy Rust of Leesburg, Va., Miss Elizabeth St. John Webb of Montclair, Miss Marion Green of Montclair, and Miss Elizabeth Small of Brooklyn. Thomas Flint of Cambridge and Worcester will be the best man. The bride-elect is the daughter of Bertram Pierpont Flint of Montclair. Her engagement was announced last month.



Miss Edith Mitton, a charming debutante of this season, will be one of the pourers at the tea at which Mrs. Charles A. Proctor will introduce her daughter, Miss Barbara Proctor on Friday afternoon. Miss Mitton and her companion, Phillip Wrenn, Jr., of Topsfield, were snapped by the cameraman as they chatted at a recent coming out party on the North Shore.

SPONSORS FOR ERNEST SCHELLING'S Saturday morning children's concerts in Jordan Hall this winter include many prominent matrons interested in these concerts. Among them are Mrs. George E. Grew, Mrs. Walter Hobbs, Mrs. Dudley R. Howe, Mrs. Lawrence Ilfeld, Mrs. Henry A. Morss, Mrs. Henry Parkman, Mrs. William Putnam, Mrs. R. S. Richmond and J. A. Lowell Blake. Fifty members of the Boston Symphony orchestra will assist Mr. Schelling at these concerts.

Plan Rummage Sale for Talitha Cumi Maternity Home and Hospital

A RUMMAGE SALE TO BE held on October 10 at the Horticultural Hall is engaging the attention of a large group of matrons interested in the Talitha Cumi Maternity Home and Hospital in Jamaica Plain. These ladies are asking for contributions for the various sales tables, desiring to make this a big success. Those actively engaged in promoting the sale are Mrs. C. C. Converse, Mrs. Alden A. Thorndike, Mrs. Arthur Perry, Mrs. William A. McKee, Mrs. Horace S. Frazer, Miss Elizabeth M. Garrett, Mrs. Eldon MacLeod, and Mrs. Frederick R. Moseley. Other members of the hospital board interested in the sale are Mrs. Edward R. Alford, Miss Lillian Bates, president of the board, Mrs. Edric Eldredge, Mrs. Robert L. Goodale, Mrs. Oliver W. Mink, Mrs. Frank W. Stearns, Mrs. Charles A. Proctor, Mrs. W. H. McElwain, Mrs. Arthur Perry, Jr., Mrs. Cora Tuxbury and Mrs. Frank Owen White.

MRS. GEORGE SALTONSTALL WEST was hostess at an informal luncheon at her Chestnut Hill home when plans for the benefit concert for the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children were outlined. Mrs. Joseph Seabury, chairman of the committee, was assisted by Mrs. John W. Hallowell, Mrs. West and Miss Mary Hunnewell in arranging for the first Boston appearance of the Aguilar Spanish Lute quartet and of the professional debut of Martha Bigelow (Mrs. Theodore L. Eliot). The concert will be given on Monday evening, November 18, at the Copley-Plaza, when a large group of society will attend. Mrs. Eliot is to give interpretive dances, and her appearance is exciting much interest.

AN INTERESTING TRAVEL chronicle today finds Mr. and Mrs. Francis Bacon Lothrop returning from a two months' trip to Europe after summering at Mattapoisett, and Mr. and Mrs. T. Jefferson Coolidge, Jr., about to depart for the Adirondacks for the fall. Mr. and Mrs. George H. Swift have returned to their apartment at the Ritz-Carlton for the winter and Mrs. James Jackson, Quincy A. Shaw McKean, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cheney of Concord are spending a few days there. Mrs. Charles A. Knowles is back at the Newhall apartments on Beacon st. and Mr. and Mrs. Harvey P. Hood, 2nd, are expected there from their summer place at Beverly this week. The Comte Biancamano, sailing on October 9 for Mediterranean ports, will carry Miss Ruth Cheney, Mrs. James C. Hopkins and Mrs. John R. Reynolds from Boston.

SAVE with ICE!

A Bohn Refrigerator will give you perfect service for a lifetime. Even a small increase of daily expense for operation will amount to a great deal in the course of years, an unnecessary tax which you should not put upon yourself.

there is no substitute for an Iced BOHN REFRIGERATOR

Ice is Nature's own refrigerant. It is always easy to obtain—the iceman comes with never-failing regularity—and Ice is cheap, perfectly safe, never gets out of order and is absolutely healthful.

A Bohn Refrigerator, iced to its normal capacity, will give you the very highest grade of satisfactory refrigeration it is possible to secure. Literally, millions of people, all over the world, can testify to this fact.

Bohn Refrigerators are marvels of construction. Their design has been approved by greatest refrigeration engineers—that is why there are over 100,000 Bohn-equipped cold storage Refrigerator cars on American railroads, every Pullman-built diner carries a Bohn Refrigerator, the United States Navy uses Bohn Refrigerators on our warships, and thousands of hotels, hospitals, clubs, public buildings and fine American homes have Bohn Refrigerators.

Surely, there is but one answer—the Bohn is the world's finest Refrigerator—and the most economical in operation.

And now prices are so radically reduced that there is no reason why every family in New England should not own a Bohn Refrigerator.

Small cash payment — convenient monthly terms—later delivery if desired.

To Tell Clubwomen of Their Legal Rights

Brookline clubwomen are in for a treat next Monday at the first meeting of the year.

What every woman ought to know about her legal status will be told by Mrs. Emma Fall Schofield, assistant attorney-general of Massachusetts, the first woman ever to serve the Bay State in that capacity.

In her lecture, Mrs. Schofield will tell the women who will inherit their property if no will is made and why, and how one should be constructed. She will discuss contracts, the laws of mistress and maid, banking and investments, parent and child, husband and wife, marriage and divorce and all other such important legal questions which befuddle most women and keep them ignorant of their actual legal rights.

Of what divorce dispossesses a woman, what her rights are under marital separation terms and how marriage effects her property ownership and inheritance will all come under the able and erudite narration of Mrs. Schofield's knowledge.

Actual cases which have happened in her practice and amusing legal anecdotes will not only bring a vein of humor and appreciation to her lecture but instructive wit.

Mrs. Schofield has consented to answer any legal problems confronting the Brookline women. If such questions are sent to Mrs. Grace Taplin, chairman of the Brookline Woman's Club, legislative committee, before next Monday they will be passed on to Mrs. Schofield who will answer them on the day of the meeting.

The meeting will start at 2:30 in Whitney Hall, Coolidge Corner, Brookline. Mrs. Nellie Scott Rice is the hostess for the day. Also serving in the social hour will be Mrs. Seward S. Crasper and Mrs. Fred S. Douglass.

Mrs. Walter T. Spencer, president, will introduce Mrs. Schofield who has taken as the subject of her talk, "Everyday Law for Women."

At the October 28 meeting of the club at the same hour and same place, Frank Palmer Speare, president of Northeastern University, will lecture on "The High Cost of Ignorance," offering a startling review and summary of the tremendous personal and national cost rolled up by ignorance of the physical, moral, social, economic and spiritual laws governing mankind the violation of which leads to disaster.

MASS. DAUGHTERS OF UNION VETERANS

The constituent tents of the Daughters of Union Veterans have started activities with a series of social get-togethers. The Soldiers' Home committee sponsored a whist party and supper and are today holding another party. The Past Tent Presidents Association of the club were entertained by the president, Mrs. Annie McGreevey.

WEST MEDFORD WOMAN'S CLUB

For the 15th year the West Medford Woman's Club undertakes its club activities. The new season opens next Monday, October 7, at 2:30 in Community Hall, West Medford, with Mrs. J. A. Potter, club president, in the chair.

Within the folders of a bluish-gold year book we find many activities of promising importance scheduled for the year. A card party sponsored by the finance committee of which Mrs. M. Etta Wiley is the chairman, is scheduled for November 1, and 15 days later a dancing party is to be given under the supervision of the same committee.

A fair for the Home for the Aged will be given on Oct. 30; guest night will be observed Jan. 27 [illegible] parliamentary law class begin [illegible] courses of instruction, under [illegible] direction of Mrs. Her[illegible]dge, in November. MASS. LEAGUE OF WOMEN VOTERS

Mrs. Mary Tenney Healy, president of the Massachusetts League of Women Voters, leaves next Sunday for a speaking tour in West Virginia, announcement from the League headquarters states. As national chairman of education, Mrs. Healy will help in solving educational problems and organize study groups throughout the state.

Next Monday she will address the opening meeting of the Wheeling League of Women Voters on "Policies and Methods of the League," at West Virginia. Mrs. Healy may extend her activities into Kentucky and Ohio as well.

WOMEN MUSICIANS' ASSOCIATION

A point well taken was introduced at the sixth district Hotel Vendome get-together of the Women Musicians' Association by the club president, Mrs. Paul Revere Knight, who stressed the need of work for members of her club.

She asked why Federated clubs [illegible] talent from the two or three such professional clubs within their own confines and why such talent was hired outside Federated rank.

The [illegible] in attendance heartily endorsed Mrs. Knight's complaint and with the suggestion that a printed folder of Federated club musician members be sent to all the clubs throughout the State, Mrs. Knight considered her problem solved. That is, if the women will keep the folder on file.

OLD GLORY CLUB

The members of the Old Glory Club will meet next Monday at 2 p. m. in Grace Horne's Studio, Trinity [illegible], and have as their guest and speaker Dean Lucy Franklin of Boston University who will tell of her "Vacation Notes." The newest member of the club is Mrs. William J. McDonald, sixth district director. Miss Marion H. Brazier, president will preside.

THURSDAY MEETINGS STATE FEDERATION

All day session at the State Federation at the Hotel Vendome Thursday in which executives and department chairmen will outline program for the year and acquaint each other with details. Mrs. Azel A. Packard will preside. It is the formal opening of the Massachusetts State Federation of Women's Clubs. The meeting starts at 10 a. m. Mrs. Thomas J. Walker, Club Institute chairman, will start her meetings, too.

WOMEN'S REPUBLICAN CLUB OF MASS.

The winter programs of the Women's Republican Club of Massachusetts begins on Thursday morning with a political department meeting, presided over by the director, Mrs. Nelson W. Howard. "Registration" is to be the subject of discussion. Amos L. Taylor, chairman of the Republican State committee, and Frank Seiberlich, chairman of the Boston election commission are the scheduled speakers.

SOUTHBOROUGH WOMAN'S CLUB

A reception to officers and past presidents features the opening meeting of the Southborough Woman's Club. It is to be a Home Talent afternoon, with readings by Miss Constance Twombley. The meeting begins at 2:30, in the Community House.

THURSDAY FORTNIGHTLY CLUB OF DORCHESTER

The new president, Mrs. Thomas A. Matthews, will preside at the opening meeting of the Thursday Fortnightly Club of Dorchester at the clubhouse. Mrs. Carrie W. Jacobs will give her report on the Federation meeting at Swampscott, and Mrs. Fred J. Moffat, chairman of the program, will relate her experiences in Jamaica.

GREAT DEMAND FOR BUICKS

Universal acceptance of the new 1930 Buick line of automobiles has brought about the greatest sales activity in the entire history of the Buick Motor Co., according to C. E. Churchill, general sales manager.

The volume of orders which are pouring into the factory office here exceeds by far even the anticipation of Buick officials, Mr. Churchill states.

The motoring public fully expected that during the last days of July the Buick Motor Co. would introduce a new, smart and mechanically outstanding line of cars. Every facility at our command was made to function in order to answer this public demand and the result is extremely gratifying.

"Orders have come into the factory so fast during the first few weeks that it has been impossible for the production division to turn out enough cars to keep abreast of the demand. However, the Buick Motor Co. is now arranging its plant facilities to take care of greater production and they are rapidly getting in shape to handle any volume of business."

FRANKLINS AT PARIS SHOW

Following the wide acclaim that met the air-cooled Franklin cars at the International Salons in Paris and London last year, the Franklin Automobile Company of Syracuse, N. Y., will again be among the exhibitors at the 1929 salons in those two capitals of the Old World.

At the Paris show, which opens on Oct. 3, Franklin will display among others two of its newest designs, a speedster model, close coupled and seating four, and a Model [illegible] Convertible Coupe just introduced. In addition to the two cars there will also be on exhibit the latest type of Franklin air-cooled engine. A supplementary exhibition will be maintained in the Rue de Belle Feuille.

At the Olympia show in London, which follows shortly after the Paris salon, Franklin will exhibit two chassis with English built custom bodies, designated as "Sportsman's Coupe." These models are four-passenger types with a single door on each side.

Dragging Brakes

Here is a way to find out whether your brakes are dragging. Speed up to thirty miles an hour on a smooth, level road. Then shift to neutral and let the car coast. When the speedometer shows twenty-five miles an hour take out your watch. If the car is not rolling five miles an hour or faster at the end of one minute have the brakes inspected.

DE SOTO SALES SHOW GAINS

With shipments of De Soto cars totalling 8163 during the month of August, and with dealers in all sections of the country placing orders for more cars to meet the demand in their localities, De Soto officials are enthusiastically speeding up production to take care of unfilled orders on hand," according to L. G. Peed, sales manager of the De Soto Motor Corporation, division of Chrysler Motors.

Shipments of De Soto cars in August, Peed says, showed an increase of 3100 cars, 61 per cent over the month of August last year, and, what is even more remarkable, an increase of 1200 cars over the monthly average of the first seven months of this year.

"The unusual demand for the De Soto Six is proof of the fact that the motor buying public is becoming more and more experienced in the finer points of automobile construction and that it appreciates real quality in a car of low price," he continued.

MARMON MAN TO STUDY BOSTON CONDITIONS

Making Boston one stop on a nation-wide business trip that includes almost every important trading center in the country, Thomas E. Jarrard, general sales director of the Marmon Motor Car Company, will be a visitor here Friday.

Mr. Jarrard is making a wide survey of business, industrial and agricultural conditions as they are likely to affect automobile sales during the coming months. Regarding Boston as the key city for a large territory, he will base an important part of his findings on the information he receives here. During his visit, the Marmon general sales director also will confer with officials of the Marmon Boston Company, local distributors for Marmon and Roosevelt automobiles. A firm believer in the value of personal business contact, Mr. Jarrard frequently visits his company's distributing organizations, co-operating in all matters pertaining to the sale of Marmon products.

The information which Mr. Jarrard will assemble on his present trip will be regarded by him as an important factor in arranging sales quotas and planning operations for the future. He has just returned from an extended trip throughout the South and Southwest, where he found business conditions generally in a much improved state, with prospects for the future the brightest in months.

Mr. Jarrard is one of the best known sales executives in the industry, and in his capacity as general sales director of Marmon he has direct charge of all the company's sales and merchandising operations throughout the United States and Canada.

The local Marmon-Roosevelt distributors at the Marmon Boston Co., located at 894 Commonwealth ave., are one of the important cogs in the company's organization, as evidenced by an excellent volume of Marmon-Roosevelt sales, not only in the city but in the large surrounding territory.

The entire line of automobiles is composed of straight eights, and the Roosevelt, introduced early this year, is the first eight ever produced to sell below $1000 at the factory.

Texas Leader in Road Improvement

Of the 29,252 miles of highway improvement by the 48 states of the Union during 1928, Texas led with 2356 miles. Kansas, with 1785 miles, ranked second. Arkansas, with 1673, was third. Iowa improved 1315 miles and Illinois, 1344, ranking fourth and fifth, respectively.

700 Tourist Camps Are Built in Texas

More than 700 tourist camps have been established in Texas since 1918. The Texas Camp Owners Association, the largest organization of its kind, has a membership of 165 of the state's most modern camps. Their prices range from $1.75 to $5 a day.

Week-End Slow Driving Faces Ban

In an effort to relieve week-end traffic jams, a resolution has been approved by the county board to bar slow-moving milk trucks, moving vans and other low-speed vehicles from Cook County and Chicago highways on Saturday afternoons and Sundays.

Coast Over Stone Stretch in Road

The best way to drive a car over a short stretch of broken stone is to take a short run at it, not too fast, and let the car coast over the stone with the clutch out. Thus the rear tires are relieved of driving strains and of the resulting tearing actions of sharp stones on the rubber.

Beautifying Roads Urged by College

Systematic tree beautification of highways, many of which it calls unsightly, is urged by the New York State College of Forestry at Syracuse University. In Europe, the college points out in a statement, the highways are a delight to the tourist, who wonders at those wonderful tree-lined roads.

Loose Motor May Cause the Knock

When looking for a knock in the engine, do not overlook the possibility of the motor being loose in the frame. The knock from this cause is not noticeable when the engine is running idle, but appears when suddenly accelerating and climbing a hill.

NEW NASH '400' ON DISPLAY OCTOBER 6

Kenosha, Wis., Oct. 2. Widespread and persistent rumors that the Nash Motors Co. is preparing to introduce an entirely new and revolutionary line of the famous "400" series of Nash cars, which have gone down in history as one of the American industry's signal successes, were confirmed here today by President C. W. Nash.

Company officials, who for weeks past have been intensively engaged in the carefully guarded activities at the great Nash plants in Kenosha, Milwaukee, and Racine, have completed final inspections of the new cars, it was learned, and have approved the host of important engineering advancements which are said to be the result of more than three years of experimental work and practical development by the celebrated Nash engineering department and salon coachmakers.

While no details concerning the mechanical advancements and new driving features of the forthcoming cars were revealed, it was intimated that they will contribute a completely new influence to the fine motor car field and will add something definitely finer to the efficiency and enjoyment of motoring. Following, as it does, the universal approval accorded the advanced design and performance attributes of the original "400" models, introduction of this new Nash group is considered one of the most important events of the automobile year, and one eagerly anticipated by all motorists.

Public announcement and display of the new Nash cars will take place October 6, Mr. Nash declared today. At that time Nash dealers and distributors in all parts of the country will raise their show room curtains on the glittering array of brand new cars, and the entire Nash merchandising organization will stand by to demonstrate their mechanical attainments and engineering superiorities.

PLYMOUTH HAS MODERN PLANT

"Just as a great river is fed by many tributary streams as it flows smoothly to its destination, so is the final assembly line of the modern, efficient, and economically operated automobile plant of today fed by many tributary streams of materials and parts that are assembled into the completed car," according to F. C. Sauerbrey, operating manager of the Plymouth Motor Corp. at Detroit.

Seventy-five per cent of the problem of manufacturing a low price automobile of quality is in the movement of the materials through the plant and the layout of the plant itself," he says.

"The plant of the Plymouth Motor Corp. at Detroit, being one of the newest in the industry, is one of the most modern," Mr. Sauerbrey continued, "is one of the largest single floor structures in the country, a half mile long and averaging 400 feet in width. Along one side of the plant are two final assembly lines, each a quarter of a mile in length."

SERVICE SCHOOL TO RE-OPEN

Pontiac, Mich., Oct. 2. The Oakland-Pontiac Dealers' Service Mechanics' Training School, one of the many safeguards by which the Oakland Motor Car Co. protects the investment of its car owners, will reopen here soon, at the end of a brief summer vacation, it is announced by R. A. Armstrong, service manager.

The school, whose students are selected from among the 20,000 Oakland-Pontiac mechanics in all parts of the United States, proved highly successful after its opening last spring, but was closed during the busy summer season because many of the dealers could not conveniently spare their service men at that time.

Passenger Car Sales Total High

Upwards of 3,200,000 new passenger automobiles were purchased in the United States in 1928, and 2,213,000 old cars were scrapped. New York, with 304,800 new cars, headed the list. Pennsylvania, with 222,600, and Ohio, with 215,000, were second and third.

Campaign Works

The continuous accident prevention campaign in the plants of the Oakland Motor Car Company achieved further results last month when the accident frequency rate (the number of lost time accidents per million hours worked) dropped to 5.113, contrasted to 11.11 the previous month.

Life Preserved by Regular Service

Regular inspection and expert attention are the secrets behind the long and uninterrupted service rendered by railway locomotives, it is pointed out by R. A. Armstrong, service manager for the Oakland Motor Car Company.

"At first thought it might appear that the locomotive retains its youth because it runs on a 'highway' far smoother than the finest boulevard," said Armstrong. "Unquestionably this fact does contribute to the long life of the locomotive.

But regardless of roadbed and rails, the locomotive soon would find its way to the scrap heap were it not carefully inspected and adjusted after every run by expert railway mechanics whose regular attention preserves the giant engine and prevents early and avoidable deterioration.

"If this fact holds true with respect to the locomotive, it should prevail to an even greater degree with the automobile."

"If anyone doubts the quality of your new gasoline, just tell him to try it. If he doesn't find it the best gasoline he ever used, then I am no judge of good gas."

[illegible]

"[illegible] and the fact that I am selling more gasoline at a premium means something. More people are stopping for Special every day."

Socony Special plus Ethyl sales have been mounting by leaps and bounds. Ten ... fifteen ... twenty ... twenty-five per cent higher. From Maine to Long Island, Boston to Buffalo, in all makes of cars, large and small, new and old, this great gasoline has met with enthusiastic approval. Here only a month, Socony Special plus Ethyl has literally swept this part of the country.

Socony Special alone was the best straight-run untreated gasoline that could be made. It was a high-compression premium fuel which thousands of motorists found so good that they gladly paid the extra cost. There was just one thing that could be done to make it better, and that was to add Ethyl anti-knock fluid. We did that one thing at extra cost to ourselves, but no extra cost to you. We took the final bit of knocking out of a smooth, even-burning, clean, wonderful gas.

Is it any wonder that Socony Special plus Ethyl is the fastest-selling high-compression premium gasoline? Fill up your tank with Socony Special plus Ethyl and feel the difference.

AT THE DIAL

By BERT BROCKBANK
Radio Editor

THE so-called modernization of the classics in music was bound to have a reaction—a reaction unfavorable to those who started it. Too long has the radio audience suffered from these Tin-Pan alley versions of the works of master composers. Adverse criticism from time to time had no effect on the writers and sponsors of such musical (sic) monstrosities. It remained for David Mendoza, conductor of the Fada Orchestra, to start the wave of public revulsion that is now approaching flood tide.

During a recent concert broadcast over the Columbia system, the Mendoza musicians played jazz interpolations of some outstanding classical compositions. It was the first time Mr. Mendoza had "modernized" the classics and he declared he did it solely for the purpose of sounding public opinion. He started a roar of protest that is still reverberating. The majority opinion coincides with his own, that jazz arrangements of the works of famous composers are neither to be encouraged nor condoned. A few of the opinions are worth reporting.

John Randolph Bolling, composer, of Washington, D. C., wrote; "Please record one vote against modernization. In fact, I feel so strongly about this that I wish there was a law forbidding it. As one who has done some little work in the field of composition, I would feel like choking anybody who dared modernize my work."

Mrs. Alice Curtis Brown of Quincy commented; "I have just listened to the Fada hour and it is with great effort that I can compose myself to write after listening to the horrible effect of the beautiful waltz ('Naila') so distorted—why do they allow people to steal the music of the great composers and make such hash of it?"

W. W. Bardsley of Providence, R. I., submits that "In my opinion, 'Naila,' the 'Overture to 'Mignon' and other compositions in the same class are inspired and to jazz one of them is nothing short of sacrilegious. May I request that 'Naila' and the 'Mignon' overture be rendered again, both as the composers intended them to be."

"When you changed 'Naila' into modern dance rhythm you ruined it. Everything from Bach to Rachmaninoff is being jazzed," another indignantly commented. One listener in New York was real mad; "I presume the next thing the 'modern' orchestras will do will be to jazz 'Nearer My God to Thee,'" he protested.

We believe that readers of this column would like to express an opinion on this subject. Constructive criticism can accomplish wonders. Drop a line to the editor, indicating whether you prefer classical music as is, or "as isn't." Your comment will be welcome.

HERALDING the beginning of a series of broadcasts of an entirely different type, the Amrad Ensemble, a 22-piece orchestral unit, under the direction of Charles R. Hector, will make its premiere on the air tonight from WNAC and WEAN from 8 30 to 9 o'clock. Special arrangements have been made to augment the orchestra with mechanical equipment, which will insure the listener of hearing distinct vibrations of a large section of the string instruments. Julius Risman, violinist, and Andrew Jackson, saxophone soloist, who will be the feature artists in these weekly programs, have a nation-wide reputation. A special arrangement of "In a Monastery Garden," by Hector and the prize composition, "Song of the Bayou," will be played with special instrumental effect. It will be good to hear the Voice of Amrad on the air again.

The program of Twilight Melodies, to be broadcast at 7 o'clock this evening through WBZ, looks good. Handel's "Largo," in a sonorous exposition by an organ and orchestra, is the opening number. Vocal trios and violin solos are interspersed, as follows:

Largo Organ and orchestra	Handel
To a Water Lily, from "Woodland Sketches" Orchestra	MacDowell
Why Do I Love You? from "Show Boat" Vocal trio	Kern
Meditation from "Thais" Violin solo	Massenet
In the Evening by the Moonlight Vocal trio
Can't You Hear Me Calling, Caroline"	Roma
Selections from "Blossom Time" Orchestra	Romberg

HANK SIMMONS' Show Boat returns to WNAC tonight with a four-act melodrama, "A Working Girl's Wrongs"; Red Seal program furnishes a ghost story of the circus, same station; the Sylvania Foresters will hold a birthday party at WBZ, Olive Palmer will sing "Carmenia," by Welson, and Schindler's "The Three Cavaliers," during the Palmolive Hour broadcast from WEEI. Old 40-Fathom in the Forty-Fathom Trawlers' program from WBZ will tell of a deep-sea diver employing an electric ray to kill an octopus.

Friends and followers of Louis Mason, the "Louie" of the Schradertown Band program, will be sorry to hear that he has been called to Lexington, Ky., by the serious illness of his mother.

UNIFORM DRUG LAW URGED BY U. S. BAR

Lawyers to Take Up Narcotic Problem at Convention in Memphis This Year

W[illegible], Oct. 2 (A[illegible])—[illegible] the growing narcotic evil, the American Bar Association, at its forth[illegible] in Memphis, may approve a uniform state narcotic [illegible] its [illegible].

The idea back of the project, which is supported by the American Medical A[illegible] pre[illegible] the [illegible] in drugs and plug up the leaks whereby dope [illegible] hands.

Whe[illegible] draft [illegible] proposed model act follows generally the lines of the federal [illegible] law [illegible] of officials who ex[illegible] to some serious defects and weaknesses.

In the first place, they pointed out, there is no provision for the automatic revocation of the State medical license of a physician who is a drug addict, or has been convicted of a narcotic offense. They hold that narcotic enforcement can never be successful until physician addicts are driven out of the medical profession.

Second, there is no provision for the segregation of narcotic addicts or for [illegible].

Third, [illegible] no single safeguard [illegible] of drugs from [illegible] channels [illegible] the hands of drug peddlers. No adequate check is placed on prescription of drugs.

A[illegible] these purposes omitted in the state act either are incorporated now in federal legislation or w[illegible] be offered through the Porter narcotic [illegible] organization bill.

LETTERS TO EDITOR

Soundness of American Education Proved

Editor Boston American:

The popularity of American methods and movements in education is indicated by the recent announcement by the daily press that there are 3955 students from foreign countries, registered in American universities.

There are indications that this number will increase. There is a tendency on the part of some American educators to advise students to go abroad for what they can receive here in our own institutions. Why? To be a graduate of an American University is just as much an honor, and more so, in many particulars, than to be a graduate of some foreign institutions.

Sees No Reason Why Clergy Shouldn't Smoke

Editor Boston American:

That minister delegate, smoking away did not fare very well at the 13th annual conference of Methodist ministers at Baltimore.

He really defied the Book of Disciples of the Methodists, which rules again the use of tobacco in any form.

Is it not frivolous to judge a minister by the habit of smoking. He will sooner or later find out whether he enjoys it or not. Phillips Brooks was a great cigar smoker. At clerical meetings, after luncheon, he helped to make the air blue. Rev. Dr. Charles Spurgeon of London clung to his pipe like an infant to a rattle.

Three-fourths of the Episcopal ministers in Massachusetts use weed. There are smokers among the ministers of the Baptist Congregational and Presbyterian Churches.

People are gradually coming to accept this habit among the ministers as the human side of their nature.

Editor Boston American:

If a haircut goes to $1 from 50 cents, as is rumored, I am going [illegible] wife [illegible] a few [illegible] barbering [illegible] I am [illegible] this increase [illegible] the same way [illegible] that wives can shave husbands as well as darn their stockings.

Praise for Progress of Rep. Rogers

Editor Boston Am[illegible]:

I was glad to read in your paper that Congressman Edith Nourse Rogers of Massachusetts is forging ahead and has the honor of being the first woman to wield the gavel over the House of Representatives as presiding officer.

There is no telling what a woman can do when she sets her mind to do it. I only wish that Dr. Samuel Johnson were alive today so that one could chase him with that utterance of his: "A woman preaching or speaking was like a dog dancing on its hind legs."

Paris, Oct. 2 (INS)—Preparations were being made [illegible] a [illegible]gh search by land and air of the Siberian wastes in an effort to find some trace of Capt. Dieudonne Coste and Maurice Bellonte, lost in an attempted record breaking distance flight to the east.

It has now been established that [illegible] Coste and [illegible] were sighted over [illegible] flying toward Irkutsk on Saturday, the day following their departure from Le Bourget flying field.

On Sunday, their plane, the Question Mark, was reported in the vicinity of Kirmensk, about 500 miles northwest of [illegible] has been received of their arrival at the latter [illegible].

It is assumed the airmen were forced down at some spot between Kirmensk and Irkutsk, possibly in an isolated district far from communication.

HART SCHAFFNER & MARX

Style notes made at the opening of YALE and PRINCETON

SEPTEMBER 24 & 25, 1929 !!

(Hart Schaffner & Marx artists and style observers cover every important style-center in America and Europe)

(Princeton) One signs for laundry before McCosh Hall; cleanliness is the first act of education. A single-breasted jacket (three buttons, notched lapel) in Corona Brown, would be the normal formal uniform of the cleanly scholar.

(New Haven) Very important information from Harkness Quadrangle: behold a trim Grenadier Blue suit with formal Homburg or dress-up helmet in the foreground; upstage, a covert coat over a Corona Brown arm. The covert coat is most emphatically correct once more!

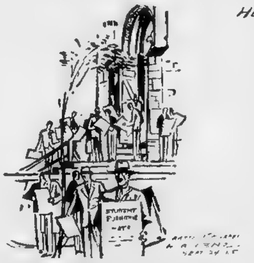
SKETCHED BY HUB LENZ SEPT 24-25



New Haven undergraduates dress pretty formally. Examine a mass of schedule-cards on the steps of Battell Chapel, for instance, and all you see is trim tailoring and Homburg hats. They're "funny that way" . . . very, very soberly and interestingly dressed, too.

BACK from their mountains, outboard cruises, tourist-thirds and moonlight heart-raids, come the prospective Bachelors of Arts and Sciences—and not 'creeping like snail' either. They total the most formidable army of youthful style in America; they pay tacit tribute to Hart Schaffner & Marx' sharp forecast of that style by their well-dressed enthusiasm for Corona Brown, and for Grenadier Blue, and for Pyramid Grey. The trick "collegiate" of the stage and comics has gone forever—and that's alright too.

(Yale Station P. O.) There ought to be a check in this mail and it ought to cover quite comfortably the two-button Corona Brown, with its urbane notched lapel; likewise a tab-collar or so, and a Homburg hat—and are there any letters here for the Prince of Wales?

50 CARS ARE TAGGED AT BRIGHTON FIRE

By FRED TOYE

CHATTER at luncheon in a Beacon st. home.

The So-and-So's have hired a yacht for a cruise to Halifax. It's costing them $10,000. Doesn't that seem like a lot of money for such a short [illegible]

"Oh, no indeed [illegible] Such-and-Such's [illegible] for [illegible] three weeks [illegible]

'S A FACT [illegible] to know it costs a thousand dollars a day to keep a fair-sized yacht in commission.

FUTILE to struggle against the calm god of our machine age. It only wear and tear upon good temper to lap dimes against the [illegible] standing [illegible] Don't expect a [illegible] to [illegible] stop on the same side of the street where it halted yesterday.

[illegible] couldn't help feeling sorry between giggles for an old boy in the subway today. He had inserted a penny in a gum-slot. Sort of smallish, short-tempered chap with an umbrella. Penny went in and no gum came out. Half a dozen vicious jabs on the plunger. Then, up with his umbrella [illegible] with the handle against [illegible]

The [illegible] laughed back at him. The umbrella handle splintered into smithereens in his hands.

HERE'S a smooth racket that has been worked on unsuspecting victims time and again in Boston.

A glib-tongued rascal hovers in the vicinity of vocal studios. He hears a voice. Perhaps a young girl or lad ambitious for a career. He sidles up and presents a card or introduces himself as a manager. Charmed by the lovely voice. Great career ahead. Leave it all to him. Just a little money for disbursement in the right direction, and then untold glory. Just three or four hundred dollars to guarantee a career. Only, absolute secrecy. Don't inform the teacher. Nothing must be said until all is ready for the glorious debut.

Nine out of 10 fall for it. The next move is to palm off a bad check. If the victim shows signs of protesting, he or she is effectually silenced by threats of law suits.

IN CASE you have some loose change in your pocket which you don't know what to do with, you might think over sending the Boston Symphony Orchestra to Paris this coming spring. It will cost only $100,000. I am led to understand that such a donation would be looked upon with considerable favor by Mr. Koussevitzky and his men. Come now, show your public spirit.

MEXICO finds its business affected by presidential election years in much the same manner as our own land. George H. Falvey, assistant export sales manager of the Gillette Safety Razor Co., is back in Boston after a long tour of the southern republic. He brings back reports of steady progress in industries, and a rapid resumption of agricultural and commercial activities following the recent rebellion.

SETTLEMENT of the Mexican church dispute has had a great deal to do with stabilizing conditions, Mr. Falvey says.

His travels made possible extensive study of conditions in San Luis Potosi, Tampico, Victoria, Saltillo, Monterey, Torreon, Durango, Aguas Calientes, Guadalajara, Puebla, Vera Cruz and Merida.

"In spite of the recent rebellion," he says, "I found that the country as a whole was suffering no after-effects. I feel confident that after having had seven years of hard times, we will now see that country make rapid progress after the presidential election, which takes place on November 17.

The religious situation, which was one of their most serious problems, was settled satisfactorily to the government and the church, and this in itself brought a spirit of confidence over the people of the entire country. It is doubtful if any further serious uprisings will come about in the near future. I am very optimistic regarding the immediate future of Mexico, and believe that practically all conditions will improve after the first of the year."

OPEN WAR ON LEAVING AUTOS IN YARDS

Police Act to Curb Menace at Commonwealth Ave. Apartment Blaze

A war on the parking of automobiles in the rear of apartment houses was begun by the Brighton police during the course of a fire today at 1969 Commonwealth ave., when they tagged 50 motor cars packed in the court there.

Fire officials who directed the fire against the blaze, which routed [illegible] menace created by the presence of the automobiles packed closely together in the rear of the brick structure. While these cars did not hamper the firemen in this particular instance, fire officials said they might well have done so.

Patrolman Edward Dudley of Brighton station affixed 50 tags.

The fire, believed to have started from spontaneous combustion on the unoccupied second floor of the building, a three-story brick affair, spread rapidly.

Firemen summoned on an alarm by a passerby confined the flames to the one floor. Smoke, however, filled the home of Dr. H. Saphostein on the first floor, forcing him and his family to the street.

In the adjoining building, 1965 Commonwealth ave., the family of James A. Halpin, on the first floor, and W. J. Gaffney on the third, were forced out by smoke. The second floor here also is unoccupied.

The loss was estimated by fire officials at $1500. The apartment in which flames started was to have occupied today by Samuel Lewis and his family. The building is owned by Rose Abrahams of Brighton.

COMERFORD ON WAY TO HUB

Francis Comerford of Brighton, disbarred attorney and former Harvard university athlete, was today turned over to Police Inspector William Connelly in New York, to be brought back to Boston.

Inspector Connelly obtained custody of the prisoner, who was arrested at the home of relatives in Brooklyn last Sunday upon presentation of an extradition warrant charging forgery and embezzlement of more than $55,000 from Boston clients.

Comerford vanished from Boston six weeks ago and, according to the police had been "hitting the high spots" in New York part of the time since. He was disbarred by Judge Elisha Bishop of Superior court on the ground of gross misconduct after the return of indictments against him.

COOK FOR POST IN FALL RIVER

Governor Allen today appointed Benjamin Cook of Fall River as justice of the Second District Court of Bristol, to fill the vacancy caused by the promotion of Judge Edward F. Hanify to the superior bench. Justice Cook was the senior special justice of the district court.

Other appointments and reappointments sent to the executive council today by the Governor are:

John J. O'Connor of Holyoke, advisory board, department of public welfare; Ignatious Zielinski, Salem, associate medical examiner, 10th Essex District; Calvin C. Shepherd, Weymouth, board of registration in embalming; James I. Fox, Saugus, board of registration, certified public accountants, reappointment; James W. Pope, Boston, master in chancery; Hollis R. Bailey, Boston, Joseph F. O'Connell, Boston, and Samuel Williston, Belmont, commission on uniform State laws, reappointments.

A petition calling for salary increases of approximately $300 for every fireman and policeman in Cambridge was filed with the Cambridge election commission by City Clerk Frederick Burke.

The signatures were secured through a canvass by members of both the police and fire departments.

The requests of residents of the Nonantum section of Newton for a branch postoffice have been definitely turned down by the Post Office Department, according to a communication received by Congressman Robert Luce from Arch Coleman, first assistant postmaster-general.

Hits York's Story of Heroism

Brookline veteran breaks silence of 11 years to confute the claim of Sergt. York and tells new story of the capture of the Germans in the Argonne with which York has been credited since the summer of 1918. (Staff photo.)

War on Sergt. York Gains New Support

Another Greater Boston veteran stepped forward today to belittle the heroism of Sergt. Alvin York, coupling his story with that of Otis B. Merrithew of Brookline, who broke a silence of 11 years to retail his version.

The [illegible] Sarkis [illegible] Pagian [illegible] line st., Cambridge, who served [illegible] with Co. F. [illegible] 328th Infantry.

In describing the memorable battle in which Sergt. York was decorated for capturing 132 prisoners [illegible] said that his company went into action with York's company, G, on their left.

In a citation Sarkis is described as having advanced ahead of his platoon to do scout work and in doing so bumped into a machine gun nest. Sarkis shot [illegible] Germans and the rest fled into the woods.

Later, in scouting around the hill, Sarkis said that he saw Sergt. York, then an acting corporal, leaning against a tree. It was a few hours later, after the hill had been surrounded, that York's exploit in capturing the Germans [illegible] to have taken place, Sarkis said.

According to the story of Merrithew, Sergt. Alvin York has been basking in a stolen glory which rightfully belongs to Sergt. Bernard Early of New Haven, commander of the heroic detail which negotiated the capture.

"We started out that morning with Sergt. Early in command to find the strength of a German force holding the southern slope of Hill 323," said Merrithew. "We [illegible] a ravine [illegible] but we then had a 200-yard open stretch before us.

"We can thank the head work of Sergt. Early that we ever got through alive. It was the worst hour of hell I ever went through. The machine gun fire of the Germans was terrific.

"All the way it was a dash, a fall and dig in. Early led the way for us, and it was he who led us through. I was second in command and York had no command at all at the time, being only a private."

Then he tells how the Germans threw down their arms, and then resumed fighting, and how Sergt. Early and himself were wounded. Continuing, he says:

"At last the Germans again threw down their arms and we took them prisoners and marched them back to the American first aid station. York was under my command at the time. At no time did he have any authority until after we reached the first aid station. There Lieut. Joseph Wood, seeing I was wounded, ordered York to take charge of taking the prisoners back of the lines, if that is called taking command, after the men had been captured and brought back."

Commenting on the charge, George Pattullo of New York, the magazine writer who was at headquarters in France when Sergt. York came back on that memorable morning [illegible] said:

RESIGNATION OF MISS DALY ACCEPTED

Probes and Dissension Motivate City Hospital Nurse; Fill Vacancy Friday

Dr. John J. Dowling, superintendent of Boston City Hospital, announced today that the resignation of Miss Ellen C. Daly, for 10 years superintendent of nurses and head of the hospital training school, has been accepted by trustees.

The trustees will meet Friday, Dr. Dowling said. It is expected that they will name an acting superintendent, pending the election of a permanent successor.

According to a member of the board of trustees, Miss Daly sought several times in the past few years to resign, but the trustees declined to accept her resignation and persuaded her to continue at her post.

The recent investigation by a special committee of the City Council and a committee appointed by Mayor Nichols, together with the dissension among nurses at the hospital, as a result of the admission of two colored girls for training, are understood to have been factors in Miss Daly's action.

Miss Daly entered the hospital 18 years ago as a nurse and won steady promotion. Ten years ago she was made superintendent of nurses and head of the training school.

A native and former resident of Dorchester, Miss Daly has lived at the nurses' home at the hospital for 10 years. She is prominently identified with nursing and social service organizations, being president of the Massachusetts League of Nursing Education; vice-president of the New England division of the American Nurses' Association and vice-president of the Massachusetts State Nurses' Association.

Safe, secure . . .
this sanitary protection
assures ease of mind

KOTEX is so light, so cool, so dainty, that women forget to dread the need of sanitary protection!

Kotex never loses its softness. It cannot pack. Many air-cooled layers of Cellucotton absorbent wadding keep Kotex light and cool though worn for hours.

Used by hospitals

Do you know that 85% of our leading hospitals use Kotex filler in preference to any other absorbent? They use it even for surgical dressings in serious operations.

Kotex has rounded, tapered corners to keep it inconspicuous, though worn with the most clinging or close-draped frocks.

Deodorizes completely

Kotex deodorizes . . . so doubly comforting to dainty, smart women. And disposes instantly, like tissue. The layers of filler can be adjusted to suit individual needs.

Try the new Kotex. Learn why millions of women, all over the world, insist on Kotex . . . why it is recommended by leading hospitals and physicians everywhere.

KOTEX IS SOFT . . .

1—Not a deceptive softness, that soon packs into chafing hardness. But a delicate, lasting softness.

2—Safe, secure . . . keeps your mind at ease.

3—Kotex filler is far lighter and cooler than cotton, yet absorbs 5 times as much.

4—In hospitals . . . Kotex is the identical material used by surgeons in 85% of the country's leading hospitals.

HARD GAME FOR EAGLES

Boston College's long string of victories on the gridiron may come to an end next Saturday. As the time for the clash with the University of Maine nears the Eagle's chances, so bright about a month ago, are looking gloomier.

Maine had a hard [illegible] opener with Little Rhode I[illegible] and they won by a 7 to 0 score. Coach Fred Brice had only five [illegible] to work with when he started the season at Orono.

This wouldn't [illegible] into an ordinary B. C. team. But it so happens that Coach Brice of the invaders has veterans from tackle to tackle. His ends and backfield men are all new.

Because Maine has a strong, veteran line between the ends, Boston College has real reason to worry [illegible] it was the weakness in this [illegible] of the Boston College eleven [illegible] in the opening game with Catholic [illegible]

B. C. had an inexperienced [illegible] The result was that the C. U. linemen were breaking through on nearly every play. They stopped most of the smashes in back of the line of scrimmage and hurried the forward passer so much that Boston College's aerial attack never did get working as it should.

Henry Plause and Pete [illegible] tackles, Al Morelli and John Maloney, guards and Andy [illegible] center will probably be the starting line for B. C. against Maine.

Herman, who [illegible] C. U. [illegible] is the only veteran in the group. The rest of the boys played their first varsity game in the one that the Eagles came very [illegible] to dropping.

With the return of Big Peter [illegible] the Boston College [illegible] may come to life and play football as [illegible] expected. This line wasn't charging against C. U. The invaders got the jump everytime.

Herman, however, could change this trouble. He's had three years of varsity experience and could get the B. C. line charging and tearing out to get the back starting

BIG RECEPTION PLANNEC FOR JACK SHARKEY AT GARDEN

By JACK CONWAY

ANDY CALLAHAN will punch it out with Bruce Flowers [illegible] a 10-round bout at the Boston Garden tonight.

Callahan has a record of 37 victories in a row. He will have the backing of the Merrimack valley when he breezes into action against Flowers to-night.

[illegible] will be Jack Sharkey Night at the Garden. Matchmaker Eddie Mack has set aside a special section for the American heavyweight champion.

Jack Conway

The conqueror of Tommy Loughran will attend the show. He will be accompanied by Mrs. Sharkey and a party of friends.

Sharkey will receive one of the greatest welcomes ever accorded a local boxer. It will even [illegible] the wild greeting that Jack received the night he stepped in on a boxing show at Mechanics Building, following his victory over Harry Wills.

Boston and New England fans realize that Sharkey is today the world's leading heavyweight. He has always been a Boston booster [illegible] the fans want to show their appreciation of his spectacular [illegible] record.

Sharkey's knockout of Loughran [illegible] him the most popular heavy[illegible] since the palmy days of Jack Dempsey. As he left the ring at the Yankee Stadium he was [illegible] by the crowd.

The world loves a winner, especially when the winner is also blessed with a knockout punch.

SHARKEY is a stablemate of Andy Callahan who clashes with Flowers tonight. He will be rooting for the Lawrence warrior to come through with a decisive victory.

Callahan was at Miami, Fla., with Sharkey. He also went to Orangeburg with Jack. It was at the latter place that Callahan did most of his training for his tussle with Flowers.

Andy is a southpaw. He keeps going every second he is in the ring and tosses a million or so punches. He reminds this writer a great deal of the Mickey Walker of seven years ago.

Like Walker, the 19-year-old Lawrence youth is also a good socker. The power of his punch has enabled him to win most of hi[illegible] battles inside of the limit.

FLOWERS is a more experienced campaigner than Callahan. He has been in the thick of the lightweight scramble for several years. At one time he was regarded as the leading challenger for Sammy Mandell but the lightweight boss never gave the New Rochelle negro a shot at the title.

Flowers engaged in a couple of hectic bouts here with Honeyboy Finnegan. In his last appearance in the Hub, he battled Jak[illegible] Zeramby.

In the Zeramby bout, Flower[illegible] proved he still can punch while he displayed a willingness to mix things at close quarters at every opportunity.

Flowers is of the opinion he [illegible] ties too many guns for Callah[illegible] and that he will win inside of [illegible] limit.

"WHY I Spotlight the truth about unsanitary cigars"

—says Alfred W. McCann
D. Litt., A.B., LL.D.
Noted Pure Food Expert

How often have you been disgusted with the filthy, germ-breeding places where some cigars are made . . . dark, stuffy factories . . . warm, dingy shops and windows . . . where cigars are rolled by careless, dirty lips and fingers and spit on the ends! What a far cry this is from the modern method of manufacture used by Certified Cremo.

GLENNA BEATS MISS ORCUTT

[illegible] Country Club, [illegible] Birmingham, Mich., Oct. 2 (AP) Glenna Collett, national women['s] champion, [illegible] the second round [illegible] Maureen Orcutt of White Beeches [illegible]

The one-sided match [illegible] on the [illegible] where Miss Orcutt [illegible] on her drive to the [illegible] and then, after a nice approach, missed an eight-foot putt by two inches. Miss Collett was on in one and in with two putts for a par three.

Five birdies crackled off the champion's clubs and Miss Orcutt, who [illegible] her record-breaking golf yesterday to eliminate Helen Hicks of Hewlett, L. I., was unable to stem the rush. Miss Collett [illegible] eight of the 13 holes [illegible] Not once [illegible] the champion [illegible] on a hole.

Their cards:

Par, out	5 5 3 5 5 4 3 5 4—41
Collett, out	[illegible]
Orcutt, out	5 5 4 5 5 4 4 6 3—41
Par, in	5 4 6 3
Collett, in	5 4 5 3
Orcutt, in	6 5 5 4

In 26 holes of the tournament [illegible] far the champion has lost but one hole, the ninth today, where she was short with her drive and where Miss Orcutt got a birdie three to her four.

In the initial round matches yesterday Glenna swamped Mrs. W. A. Johnson of Philadelphia 6 and 5 without losing a hole.

Mrs. Dorothy Campbell Hurd, veteran from Philadelphia, who has held the national championship three times, turned in the most lop-sided victory of the tournament thus far, crushing Anjeannette Hunter of Pittsburgh 9 and 8.

Mrs. Harley Higbie, Detroit, fought an uphill battle and eliminated Edith Quier of Reading, Pa., one up. Miss Quier had a medal score of 88, six over par, while Mrs. Higbie had an 89.

Mrs. Higbie won on the [illegible] green with a par five to her [illegible] wild seven.

Mrs. Stewart Hanley gave Detroit [illegible] second quarter-finalist [illegible] defeating Mrs. [illegible] of Chicago [illegible] Mrs. Hanley [illegible] par for the 16 holes while the Chicago veteran was over.

Another favorite, Mrs. O. S. Hill of Kansas City, Western and Trans-Mississippi champion, won into the third round by conquering Kathleen Wright of Pasadena, Cal., 5 and 4.

The first upset of the day came when Mrs. Leo Federman of New York eliminated Virginia VanWie of Chicago, 1928 finalist and twin-medalist with Miss Hicks in the present tournament, 2 and 1.

EVENING AMERICAN SPORTS

Sparkling Galaxy of Experts Will Cover World Series

THE Boston Evening American [illegible] for its readers an unexcelled [illegible] of the coming World Series between the Philadelphia Athletics and Chicago Cubs.

A brilliant staff of experts will cover every game and its description of events will be published on the day on which they happen.

Heading the splendid array of [illegible] will be Nick Flatley, sports e[illegible] American and one of the best kn[illegible] most widely read of all diamond [illegible]. He will furnish a vivid description as well as a [illegible]y-by-play account of each contest.

HORNSBY

Then there will be Damon Runyon, the country's leading descriptive writer, who will give his impressions of the battle in his own inimitable way.

The western viewpoint will be ex[illegible]ained by Warren Brown, Chicago sports expert.

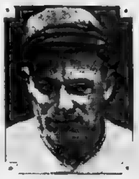
And the participants' ideas of the [illegible]ggles, without which no series account [illegible] complete, will be furnished by such outstanding stars as Rogers Hornsby, great second baseman and slugger, and Charlie Root, pitching ace, of the Cubs, and Jimmy Foxx, sterling initial-sacker and hitter extraordinary of the Mackmen.

FOXX

In addition, there will be other signed articles and sidelights of the series in the American, daily.

No other accounts can possibly surpass those which it will be the privilege of the readers of this paper to enjoy.

Next to attending the series in person, the best way to keep informed as to what is going on will be to read the series stories in the Boston Evening American.



ROOT

For nothing that happens on the diamond or behind the scenes in either Chicago or Philadelphia will escape the experienced eyes of these reporters. You will get all the dope.

Don't forget the American's championship lineup — Flatley, Runyon, Brown, Hornsby, Root and Foxx. They're sure to win.

Better order your copies of the Boston Evening American now, for the series extras are as sure to be as scarce as tickets for the games while the classic is in progress.

TURN TO CLASSIFIED SECTION OF TODAY'S PAPER FOR LISTINGS OF THESE CARS

A GOOD USED CAR will perform many varied duties: Drive you to your office; carry your wife on her shopping tours; transport your children to and from school in inclement weather; convey the entire family out into the country, over mountain trails and along winding valley roads.

Arthur Brisbane said, "A human being without an automobile is like a bird in a cage."

Sufficient transportation for all the family — that's what Mr. Brisbane probably had in mind when he wrote the above in his "Today" column. The two-car idea is practical, when you consider how economical it is to make your second a Used Car.

You take no risk whatever when you buy a GOOD USED CAR. Practically every car offered, by reliable dealers, is thoroughly reconditioned, and you can buy with confidence!

A car of your own is the best prescription for continued health and recurring pleasures. You may write your own prescription today. Keep out in the open during the Autumn months ahead. Purchase one of the GOOD USED CARS offered by the Automobile Merchants of Greater Boston.

Now is really the best time to motor. Nature dips her brush into the most brilliant of reds, oranges and yellows — the richest of greens and browns. Thru the warm haze of Indian Summer the late sun sinks into the lavender hills, making way for the glorious Harvest Moon. See these Autumn beauties by motor.

NOW is the time to get out into the New England countryside in a GOOD USED CAR.

T[illegible]

HAY STACKS

1 cup granulated sugar
[illegible] cup corn syrup
[illegible] cup condensed milk
[illegible] cup water
[illegible] tsp. salt
[illegible] cup molasses
1 pound shredded coconut
[illegible] tbsps. butter

Mix sugar, syrup, milk, water, molasses and salt. Cook to the soft ball stage. Add the coconut and butter and pour out on a greased platter to cool. When cool enough to handle, form into cone shaped hay stacks.

CHOCOLATE FUDGE

3 cups sugar
2 tsps. corn syrup
2 tbsps. butter
3 squares unsweetened chocolate
½ tsp. vanilla
1 cup milk

Boil all ingredients together, except the butter, to 238 deg. F., until when dropped into cold water it forms a soft ball which can be picked up with the fingers. Stir in butter, a pinch of salt and vanilla. Then beat until creamy. Add nut meats or cut up marshmallows and pour into a well greased pan. Cut into squares.

PENOCHE

3 cs. light brown sugar
1 c. milk (fresh or condensed)
[illegible] c. chopped nuts (butter nuts if possible)
1 tbsp. butter

Cook sugar and milk together, stirring slowly until a soft ball is formed in cold water. Add butter and a pinch of salt. Cool without stirring. Beat until creamy. Add nuts and pour into greased pan to harden, then cut into squares.

MOLASSES MINT TAFFY

2 cups molasses
2 tsps. vinegar
1½ tbsps. butter
½ tsp. salt
½ tsp. soda
7 drops oil of peppermint

Cook molasses and vinegar in a saucepan slowly, stirring constantly until the temperature is 260 deg. F., or until syrup becomes brittle when tested in cold water. Remove from fire and add butter, salt and soda. Stir until mixture ceases to foam. Pour into a greased pan. When cool enough to pull, pour peppermint in center and draw corners toward the center. Pull until light in color.

BROWN SUGAR FUDGE

2½ cs. brown sugar
2 tbsps. butter
1 c. milk
1 square chocolate

Cook sugar, milk and chocolate together until the mixture forms a soft ball in cold water. Stir in butter and a pinch of salt. Set in a pan of cold water to cool. Beat until creamy. Pour into greased pans to harden. Cut into squares. Chopped nuts may be added if desired.

You must study your child. You must [illegible] mould [illegible] character and change it.

For instance, don't say a lot of things you do not mean. When you threaten, carry it out always.

Be sure, also, that your child knows and understands what you desire and what you require of him. A child may be busy playing, and not realize that you are speaking to him.

When you do punish, do so promptly. A child invariably resents being punished for naughtiness committed several days previous.

Don't frighten your child. Never say the man in the woods will come [illegible] and put him in a big black bag, for instance. A child [illegible]

Her pet enthusiasm was acquiring the sun-tanned complexion, on the whole a normal and safe ambition, despite the menace of over-doses of [illegible].

A woman should not be fat. A fat woman is not beautiful and she is not as healthy as one who is at her normal weight. The tables of average weights for women are based, as a rule, on weights of insured women, who are healthy, else they could not carry insurance. These women are [illegible] when weighed [illegible] estimating your own weight in comparison with the average for your age and height, allow about three pounds for clothing in the standard weights and make due allowance for your own clothing on the scales.

[illegible] Another point: You may have unusually small bones or large bones and this bone structure may make a difference of five pounds in your normal weight. For instance, if your correct weight, according to the table of weights, is 125 pounds, but your bone structure is slight, you may [illegible] pounds [illegible] larger than those of [illegible] women of your height [illegible] measurements are [illegible] and standard measurements can only give you a general idea of what you should weigh.

You cannot overeat and [illegible] exercise and still have a lovely figure. It simply can't be done. Exercise in the fresh air is normal and essential to health, beauty and slenderness. Eat a sensible variety of food, but not too much.

BE HONEST WITH SELF

By LUCY LOWELL

T[illegible] books, non-[illegible] proportions and subjects of sufficient weight to stir up the mental processes. And a woman I know was burrowing somewhat feverishly through one of them, keeping the other nearby, as if for instant use the moment the first should be out of the way.

"I've got to finish these by Saturday noon," she threw in my direction, hardly raising her eyes.

Friday was well along and the hot weather non-conducive to intensive study.

"Who says so?" I demanded.

My friend glanced up then, a bit annoyed, but took time to reply.

"Who? Oh, I just promised myself I would. Two books a week through the summer—you'd be surprised how much reading you can get done that way, but I slipped up this week and let these go till [illegible] you see."

She [illegible] and I reflected on the importance of keeping promises—especially the promises you make yourself. Easy—so easy—to say, "Why, nobody to be hurt or offended only myself to be considered. I'll just let that go for this once."

And before you know it the thing has gone for good and other things are beginning to seem slippery somehow—to show a startling manner of getting away from you before you fairly have your hands on them.

And presently those who know you best begin to deplore the fact that you are not quite honest.

Oh, yes—there's plenty of reason for this. How can you be honest with others if you're not honest with yourself?

How can you keep your word with others if you do not keep your word with yourself?

Meditations of a Wife

By HELEN ROWLAND

SOPHISTICATION, like medicine, is a good thing when taken in homeopathic doses. Its primary effect is to make a woman entertaining, but its secondary effect is apt to be fatal. Fatal to her charm! And to her marrying prospects.

Theoretically, a man may admire a "bright, snappy girl" who can't be fooled and who refuses to take him seriously. But he [illegible] in the [illegible] his eyes and pretends to believe him.

He may stand for the frank and cynical young woman who laughs off his line and "sees through him" but he usually falls for the girl who swallows the hook, line, and sinker, and says she "understands" him.

He may have a wholesome respect for the girl with a ready comeback and a snappy line of repartee, but he has a warm, glowing spot in his heart for the one who knows how to listen raptly, and only interrupts when it's time to applaud.

Mentally, he may agree with the disillusioned woman who has "discovered that all men are alike." But sentimentally and subconsciously, he is looking for a woman who has not had all the star-dust brushed from her eyes and who still believes in love and "heroes," and is looking for a combination of Prince Charming-Solomon-and-Richard Coeur de Lion—and thinks he's "IT."

He may be afraid to trifle with the hard-boiled young person who has his number—but he is not afraid to marry the woman who thinks his number is "Number ONE!"

Pep and cynicism and wit, like diamonds and orchids, may dazzle him—but a soft dulcet voice, a tender [illegible] eye, a winning [illegible] the fragrance of [illegible] flowers soon enchant him.

In short, the average man doesn't want to be analyzed—he wants to be idealized. And no woman can do both.

Men may find the hard, brittle, sophisticated girl amusing. But today, yesterday and forever, they like their women SWEET!

They may enjoy dancing to the blare of a saxophone—but they fall in love to the mellow soft notes of a violin.

Modernistic women like modernistic furniture, are too sharp and hard and uncompromising to be comfortable. A man's idea of a comfortable woman or a comfortable chair is as old-fashioned as embroidered mottoes and crocheted tidies. Men haven't budged a quarter of an inch from their original or aboriginal tastes in feminine charm or their tastes in women, since Adam first strolled in the moonlight with Eve!

ON BUYING THE RING

By MRS. BEECKMAN

(Mrs. Beeckman will be glad to answer questions on etiquette submitted by readers.)

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I am an interested reader of your column. I am going to propose to my "girl" and am going to ask your advice. Should she pick out the ring and should I put it on her finger, or should I give it to [illegible]

WAL[illegible]

I [illegible]

Y[illegible] always had the ring in some convenient pocket, as [illegible] to place it on "her" finger if the answer to "the" question was favorable. But now we are perhaps less romantic — although I don't really think so [illegible] practical. It's [illegible] it should be just the kind of ring that she has dreamed about. Now this is difficult, if she isn't consulted. So I suggest that you talk it over with her, ask her somewhat about her preferences, and so forth.

[illegible] the [illegible] of the young man's budget. He can see to this adaption if he will go to his jeweler, tell him the girl's preference, state what his budget is or approximately is, and see what can be done to untie these two factors happily.

The jeweler will choose several rings, and will probably volunteer to take them to the girl's home for her to choose from.

Or, best of all, you can choose several stones for her to take her choice, and then the jeweler will design for you, or have designed, several sketches of settings. Your fiancee can then choose the one that she wishes. In this way — with the stone that she prefers, and with the setting designed especially for her—the ring will be more personal and probably [illegible] greater delight.

CHANGING ONE'S MIND

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX
An Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

SINCE time immemorial it has been a woman's privilege to change her mind. In fact, woman's reputation for changeableness and not knowing her own mind is such that we have a maxim, "A woman's no, means yes!"

It remains true, however, that we would never progress if men and women did not change their minds. To constantly change your mind shows lack of [illegible] and [illegible] But to change your mind now and then, for good reason, means your mind is open to new ideas and is capable of correcting its own mistakes.

An occasional change of mind [illegible] among sweethearts is [illegible] and should be [illegible] without last resentment.

[illegible] and Bill let us say, are [illegible] out together rather steadily. Suddenly Bill develops an [illegible] Babs and finally [illegible] attentions to Betty in order to devote himself to Babs. Unless a definite engagement exists, there is not the slightest occasion for apologies or reproach on either side unless it be self-reproach. If Betty cares for Bill, she may wail [illegible] Wherein have I [illegible] his interest and devotion? Is it my fault or my misfortune that he has tired of me?"

Bill cannot be blamed. Even though he may seem to Betty to be a quitter, yet she has had an opportunity to study him and has only herself to blame if she count[illegible]

If you decide that your temper or temperamental [illegible] over-eagerness, hysterical outbursts, jealousy, nagging or sentimentality caused your sweetheart to lose interest in you, try to win him back by cultivating poise. Make yourself amusing and attractive. Cease trying to "run things." You may succeed—if not, you can be a good loser.

On the other hand, thinking things over, you may realize that you and he could not possibly interest each other long because of the difference in your tastes, background, likes and dislikes. In that case, let him go good-humoredly—with your blessing!

To control your emotion and use common sense when a man changes his mind or has a change of heart [illegible] not easy. But one and all have the privilege of changing their minds, and it is through going about first with one, then another or with a crowd, that young folks are able to choose helpmates successfully. Remembering this will save quarrels, recriminations and heartaches, and your pride will come to your rescue and help you pull yourself together. When sweethearts realize they have no hold on each other and their comradeship is from day to day, hour to hour, subject to change of mind or heart, they restrain or eliminate unlovable traits [illegible] each other's eyes.

If a couple are engaged and one experiences a change of heart and breaks the engagement [illegible] more serious [illegible] presupposes proved mutual love, hence heartaches follow the break.

[illegible] enter into an engagement [illegible] deep thought [illegible] Courtship [illegible] of close companionship whether an engagement would be wise, suitable and happy. But even an engagement can and should be broken very kindly—when either party realizes that love is gone.

A year or two ago a famous young man with a clean record broke off his friendship with a certain young widow. Recently, he married a lovely girl, whom he sincerely loves. Now the widow [illegible] claiming an en[illegible] bringing [illegible] dollars [illegible]

[illegible] heart balm is proved unjustified by the court, those who bring it shall in turn be prosecuted for blackmail and imprisoned if convicted.

Even though the young man and young widow were engaged, either one was justified in breaking the engagement, provided he or she became disillusionized and indifferent. Why should a change of mind and heart be the privilege of a woman, but not of a man? Why should there be a penalty attached unless children and their welfare are involved?

This brings us to marriage when a change of heart is indeed a serious matter in view of vows and responsibilities [illegible] welfare and happiness of innocent children are at stake, it is doubtful whether a change of mind or heart ever justifies breaking up a home. Here tolerance and compromise come to the rescue.

Frank and Mabel thought [illegible] agreed on nearly every subject, from "cabbages to kings," when they married ten years ago. But their ideas diverged more and more. Mabel took up a new [illegible] while Frank remained loyal to his old faith. One votes for and the other against prohibition. Mabel likes to dance, Frank loathes dancing and plays golf incessantly. But the two have cultivated the art of disagreeing tolerantly. And this tolerance, making amiable allowance for differing and new ideas, has left a fine friendship, a thousand and one [illegible] between them of [illegible] and habit, and saves [illegible] marriage.

Those who make [illegible] use of the inalienable right to change of mind and heart in courtship and betrothal as a rule [illegible] gently, and are not menaced by serious change of heart after marriage. They are [illegible] true friends and helpmates, and each, knowing well the faults and weaknesses of the other, can yet join in that lovers' refrain, "I cannot live without you!"

Look love straight in the face. Bring your common sense to the study of its nature, then you will not blame anyone but yourself for a change of heart or mind, and intelligence and affection will bring success to your romance.

A KISS FOR CORRINA

By MAY CHRISTIE
CHAPTER 30

She sighed. She dropped her voice to a mellifluous whisper. "It's so artificial. Something is missing. Isn't there a quotation somewhere about something that 'gives a sublime rhythm to a woman's life'?"

This was pure Greek to him. He felt embarrassed. "I'm afraid I'm no great shakes at literature."

She took another deep draft of her cocktail. It was her third drink, but she needed inspiration. Before Denise arrived she must get in the good work.

"The 'sublime rhythm' means love," she volunteered, fixing her small and rather beady eyes upon him.

Malvey, who had imagined the 'sublime rhythm' must mean jazz, was silent and awkward.

She wanted to impress him with her delicacy of feeling. Her emotions, she explained, had all the fragility of a butterfly's wings.

"Life does such things to one!" she sighed, moving a little nearer him, "and it's so hard to keep one's illusions."

Now Malvey was a simple young American and had never labored at all in feminine psychology. Corinna was much too young and busy to be neurasthenic. He felt at a loss. . . .

[illegible] done a good many queer things to the Countess de Santalvos and lots of those things wouldn't bear investigation.

She summoned Yogo with more cocktails. She wanted to give her emotions yet more freedom and hoped that the drink would have a similar effect on this somewhat bashful young fellow.

She had been studying Madam Glyn of late, but had forgotten her instructions that the surest way to a man's heart was to get him to talk about himself.

He wanted to tell her about Corinna. But he was vaguely conscious that she was making it difficult.

Something odd was expected of him, and that made him nervous. Almost [illegible] he swallowed his second cocktail.

"A sympathetic person," said the Countess de Santalvos, edging still a little nearer, "is the greatest rarity one can find in New York. I know loads of people, and give shoals of parties and spend ever so much time and thought and energy on entertaining, but when the show's over and they've all gone home, I tell myself that's only another night wasted!"

This was too true. But not an unnatural sequence considering the character of Natalie's acquaintance.

"I should think you could pick and choose," said Malvey Craig in a flat tone. He wanted to begin about his little friend who was staunch and loyal to her finger tips, and a marvelous companion.

But he was afraid it wouldn't be welcome.

"Women want LOVE," said the de Santalvos lady, unctuously, letting her arm with its trailing draperies slide stealthily along the back of the bench. She was provocatively close to him, and she hoped he would kiss her. Oh, if Denise Van Wyck could only find him making love to her!

"The cocktails have certainly gone to her head," thought Malvey. He tried to edge away from her, but as she had got him in a corner he couldn't move, unless he got up—and that would seem rude.

"Can I offer you a cigarette?" he suggested nervously, drawing a packet from his pocket.

The countess felt a little dizzy. As the young man lit her cigarette she murmured: "Love is the smoke made from the fumes of sighs. . . ."

Her own love affairs, if one could call them such—had all gone up in smoke—all of them.

He said now, for he was a very honest fellow, and he had been feeling rather mean about Corinna: "There are lots of genuine people in the world whom one can trust and fall in love with. I've got a wonderful girl-friend whom I'd like to have you meet."

"Easy" by BEATRICE BURTON

Author of "The HOLLYWOOD GIRL"

CHAPTER 39

FROM the janitor's suite in the basement Ann Marie telephoned Janet [illegible] to let her know she couldn't [illegible] after all.

From [illegible] to the little restaurant not far away on Charles st. and ordered lunch for five people at half past one.

"You've just got to go—you two!" she told Alice and Jeanie when she went back to the flat and found them getting dressed in the bathroom. "After all, Dad is our father, and we ought to treat him decently, no matter whom he's married!—And you girls will want to go home to be married, anyway. A girl should be married from her own home."

"That's what Brookie tells me," Jeanie spoke up, "and I'm about ready to go home, anyway. This business of sleeping on an army cot isn't so wonderful. Brookie and John Lawler are coming up tomorrow, and I think I'll go home with them."

Her words were balm of Gilead to Ann Marie.

"I only hope she doesn't change her mind," she thought and sent up a swift prayer to Heaven that she wouldn't.

"Now then, about this here little car of mine—," Mrs. Leezy began when they were all [illegible] around a big table in the restaurant, starting off their meal with [illegible] and hot [illegible] bread sticks. "It ain't exactly a new car, Ann Marie. I bought it cheap because it had been used as a demonstrating car. And if you want to buy it from me you can have it for $50 down and so much a month. ... It cost me $100 and you can have it for three. If that ain't a bargain nothing ain't a bargain!"

"But I can't afford it," Ann said.

She simply was not going to be [illegible] into buying the little car. It was the last thing in the world that she needed.

"Alice says you're making plenty of money these days," Mrs. Leezy said, "holding down a job in an office and painting dresses on the side—and you must be makin' money! Look at that hat you're wearing and those fresh flowers pinned on to you! Those things cost money!"

"Not much," Ann Marie told her. "And I don't want a car. I'm trying to save every dollar I can for [illegible] drawing lessons."

Mrs. Leezy dropped over her plate of ravioli and Parmesan cheese.

"I shouldn't never have [illegible] that car in the first place," [illegible]. "We ain't got [illegible] place to put it [illegible]"

"Maybe you can sell the car back to the people you bought it from," said Ann Marie [illegible]. She simply was not going to buy that car.

[illegible] bought [illegible] who can [illegible] as the [illegible] were [illegible] turned the [illegible]

"It's just like picking it up [illegible] a car at that price," he said when Ann Marie told him about [illegible] of the fun we [illegible] around in it [illegible] Sundays. Summer [illegible] we could go out to Long Beach to swim and 'way out to Point O' Woods. If I had fifty bucks you can [illegible]!"

"I have that much," murmured Ann Marie, "but—"

"Well, for Pete's sake, go on, give it to your stepmother right now before she changes her mind," he told her. "You're getting the bargain of a life time."

It wasn't of the bargain that Ann Marie was thinking, however, when she walked into the tiny dressing room where Mrs. Leezy was getting into an old-fashioned linen dust coat.

She was thinking of herself and Neal, in that little roadster, skimming over the white sun-baked road [illegible] runs from New York to Long [illegible] of the two of them lying on silvery sands in their bathing [illegible] with a blue expanse of ocean [illegible] out before them and a [illegible] sky above.

"I've decided to take the car, Mrs. Leezy," she said, and laid five $10 [illegible] on the dressing table. [illegible] But I'm [illegible]

[illegible] Neal drove Mr. M[illegible] and his wife to the station in it and put them on their train.

On Sunday morning Brooke and [illegible] to spend the day. They came at ten in the morning [illegible] Jeanie and Ann Marie were packing Jeanie's trunk.

"I'm going home with you boys [illegible] when you get ready to go," she told them. "I'm tired of living like a sardine in a can—and I get [illegible] and lonesome here without [illegible]ky."

She put her hands on either side of Brooke's red head, pulled his face down and kissed him.

"I'm like the girl in the Song of the Swamp, Brooky," she said with a husky tender little laugh. "I've got to go where you are. I've got to know where you are."

Johnny Lawler turned his back on them.

"Where's Alice?" he asked Ann Marie.

"She went out a few minutes ago," Ann Marie replied. "She said that she and Neal were going to take a run around the block in my little car—you haven't heard about my car, have you?"

She told him and Brooke about it.

"I haven't had a ride in it yet, myself," she said, dragging Jeanie's leather hat box out into the middle of the floor.

"Why don't you boys go over to Neal's flat while we finish packing?" Jeanie suggested suddenly. "It won't take us long and it's so crowded and messy in here. Where's the key to Neal's flat, Ann Marie? Give it to the boys."

Ann Marie took it out of her handbag and gave it to them.

They went out into the hall shutting the door behind them.

It wasn't more than ten seconds later that Alice came bursting into the room, her face ashen, her body trembling from head to foot.

"You did that on purpose, Ann Marie Mur[illegible]!" she cried, her voice bitter with accusation and shrill with anger. "You knew I was in there, and you gave Johnny that [illegible] so he could spy on me, didn't [illegible] You [illegible] down little sneak!"

[illegible] with astonishment, Ann Marie could only stand and stare at her.

Then Johnny came back into the room. He came in very quietly and stood just inside the door.

And very quietly he spoke to Alice.

"[illegible] of course, that you don't want to marry me next month," he said to her. "And that's quite all right with me. I certainly don't want to marry a girl who's in love with another man."

Alice looked from him to the engagement ring that sparkled like a [illegible] dewdrop on her left hand.

She started to take it off. Then she thought better of it and put it back on her finger.

"No, I won't give it to you!" she said to him in a loud defiant voice. "It's the only nice thing you ever gave me and I'm going to keep it! And if you try to get it, and I'll sue you for breach of promise!"

Johnny laughed.

"I don't want the ring," he said and he did not seem to be [illegible]-hearted in the least. "All I want is a clear understanding that we're not engaged any longer."

Alice looked at him a moment longer. Then suddenly she burst into tears that rolled [illegible] down her cheeks, making little white streaks in the paint that was on them.

"You'd think he'd caught Neal kissing me, wouldn't you?" she sobbed, appealing to Ann Marie and Jeanie. "Breaking our engagement just because he saw Neal's arm around me in there—"

She jerked her head in the direction of Neal's apartment.

"Why, Neal and I are always fooling around with each other!" she went on crying as she talked. "And Ann Marie doesn't throw a fit about it—Please, please, please do understand me, Johnny."

Johnny's jaw hardened in a stubborn line.

"I understand you all right," he said levelly, "and I'm through—"

He broke off abruptly in the middle of a sentence, turned and went out of the room and down the stairs.

Alice held her breath for a long moment. ... Then there came the distant sound of the street door closing.

"O-o-oh! He's gone!" she wailed. "He's gone——"

All at once she threw herself upon Ann Marie, shaking her by the shoulders, glaring at her like a wild little tiger-cat.

"And it's all your fault—you nasty beastly girl!" she shouted between great sobbing breaths. "You—[illegible] him in there—"

"No! Lord!" Jeanie had to shout, too, to make herself heard above the uproar. "It was my idea to give the boys the key—Alice, please listen to me."

It took all of them a long time to quiet her.

But at last she was quiet, stretched out on the day-bed, with her eyes closed as if she were asleep.

She wasn't asleep, however. A few minutes after Jeanie and the boys had carried Jeanie's baggage out to the car and started home she got up on one elbow and spoke to Ann Marie.

"Please don't think I ever cared about Johnny Lawler. ... The thing that slays me is losing all of his beautiful money."

Then she lay down again. She slept all afternoon.

At six o'clock that night Neal came knocking on the door of the apartment. He was solemn-eyed and shame-faced.

"Are you through with me?—I suppose you are," he said softly. "I suppose you feel as if you never want to see me again, don't you?"

Ann Marie shook her head.

"I wish I could feel that way about you," she said, and she said it with a kind of anger. "But I can't—and I know I'm a fool because I can't. Even if I knew you were in love with Alice, it would be hard for me to give you up."

Cakes of Gold—A Short Story -:- -:- By Emma Gary Wallace

RAYMOND PENNINGTON looked up a bit impatiently as he heard footsteps in the outer office. He had some especially intricate and important estimates to make out, and they must be ready without fail by 4 o'clock. Interruptions had been annoyingly frequent.

The footsteps came nearer, and in the doorway appeared an unusually pretty girl—a gold and white girl with pansy blue eyes, a merry smile, and wearing a demure, Quaker gray outfit, with white collar and cuffs and a close-fitting, plain little gray hat.

"Pardon my intrusion," she remarked briskly, "but I am selling home-made cookies—made by my own fair hands, and rich, creamy milk from one of the finest dairies in the state, as you see, in individual bottles. Wouldn't you like to eat your lunch right here—milk and home-made cookies?"

Raymond's annoyance had entirely disappeared.

"Say," he exclaimed almost enthusiastically, "that's a great idea, and it'll save me going out today when every minute is precious! Give me a half dozen cookies and a bottle of milk. How much?"

The caller dropped the change into her hand bag without counting it.

"I'm glad to be of service," she nodded. "Shall I call tomorrow?"

"By all means—that is, if the cookies are good."

"Then I'll call," said the girl, "because I know they're good. They're made after a recipe that's been in our family as nearly as I can make out since the Ark docked on the top of Mt. Ararat," and with that she was gone.

By every right, Raymond Pennington ought to have got right at those estimates without a second's delay. But he didn't. Instead of that he spread the morning paper out on his desk, laid the cakes upon it and observed with approval, that his young lady caller had left a paper cup and a sanitarily wrapped straw, so that he could take his choice as to his method of imbibing the contents of the milk bottle. He chose the cup.

The first bite of cookie brought a look of intense satisfaction to his face. She was right. They were good cookies. Just sweet enough. Just flavored enough. Just thick enough. And rich and luscious. Ummm!

He munched away industriously until the last crumb was gone, but in his mind's eyes he was not seeing cookies at all. Right before him was a business-like and mightily attractive girl. More the kind he reflected, that he would expect to see in a sophisticated drawing room, than selling cookies and bottles of milk from a snowily covered basket in an office building.

When his lunch was finished, the head of the well known Pennington & Pennington (father and son) engineering firm, got back to his figures, but underneath it all he was conscious that he must plan to be right here at his desk the same time next day lest he miss this lovely young caller.

He found himself thinking of her again and again, and especially as he sat at the opera that evening beside Natalie Barber, who was admitted to be something of a snob although her family fortunes were considerably decadent.

Natalie prided herself on having what in modern parlance is known as "It." Raymond Pennington weighed her rather critically as the evening moved on, and he decided in his own mind that the girl of the cookies and milk had "It" to a greater degree than even this society girl with her many shallow little affectations.

He had known for some time that Natalie was ready to say "Yes," whenever he should be ready to ask the all important question. There had been a time when he had taken it for granted that he probably would propose to her some day, but lately the idea was not especially pleasing, and he himself making excuses why he should postpone such action.

Within a week's time Raymond Pennington was beginning to wonder what his father would say and his aristocratic mother, if he should elect to marry a girl who sold cookies and milk from office to office. Once he would have pronounced such an idea as utterly [illegible]. He but now he was saying "Why not? It's my own affair if I do."

The girl never made the slightest effort to win favor or attention beyond the business in hand. Once or twice he had tried to detain her, but she had just remarked casually, "I must be flying along. There are other he-men waiting hungrily for Yours Truly. 'Bye!'"

The thought was anything but pleasant—"other men waiting hungrily." Would any of those bounders over in what he suspected to be a fake stock selling set of offices, dare to try to make up to her? He really ought to speak to her about it!

But the next day he was not alone when she called, and before the night he was summoned from the city on a southern business trip upon which a big contract hinged. He chafed.

And when he came back—well, he could hardly wait for the next day at noon to come. It arrived at last, but it didn't bring the girl of his dreams! Nor did the next day, nor the next! How stupid that he had never asked anything about her! He would find out. He must find out! But how?

It occurred to him that she would have to have permission to sell from the superintendent of the building, and sure enough, from him he was able to get her address. He lost no time in taking a taxi to that street and number, which to his amazement was an exclusive apartment house section.

The girl herself came to the door, and without a moment's hesitation, Raymond Pennington took her two hands in his.

"Why did you run away from me?" he asked. "I—I thought I'd lost you!"

The rich color slowly mounted to the fair cheeks of the girl of the cookies and milk.

"Why—why should you care?" she smiled.

"But I do care! I care enough that I've rushed home from the South to tell you that I love you, and if you will marry me I'll be the happiest man in the world."

"Come in," said the girl quietly. "You don't know what you are saying. Think of your family [illegible] a daughter-in-law with such [illegible] an absurd commercial instinct."

"I shall marry to suit myself—if you'll only say the word," he plead[illegible]. "What matter whether you have money or not? I have a modest [illegible] now and Dad has made [illegible]."

The girl was quite white now.

"Do you mean to say you really would marry a working girl whose name you don't know—or—or anything of her past record?"

Raymond laughed.

"My sweet boy! I believe that in my heart of hearts I have known and loved you always!"

The girl looked directly at him.

"And I have loved you," she admitted slowly, "since the first day I saw you. I was literally wretched," she added with a smile, "until I learned that you were single—and unattached."

Raymond folded the girl in his arms, almost afraid that he might awaken and find it all a dream.

"And your name, beloved?" he said at last, looking down at her tenderly. "Not that it matters—only I can't address you as the cookie angel, you know!"

At which they both laughed.

"Oh," she said lightly, drawing back but still holding his hands, "my name is Bernice Armstrong, granddaughter of Seth Armstrong."

"Not the [illegible]!" exclaimed [illegible].

The girl nodded.

"One provision of my inheritance," she explained casually, "was that I should live in this apartment house which he owned, and support [illegible] self for one month without aid from or knowledge of friends. I tried the way you know—and succeeded."

"I'll say you did," burst out Raymond—"if I had known, I wouldn't have dared—"

A firm little hand was placed over his mouth as Bernice crept into his arms again.

The Child's View of Life, an Interesting Story by Constance Cameron

SOMEWHERE, a long time ago I read a line which has stuck in my memory and colored my philosophy of life to an appreciable extent. I am sorry I can't tell who wrote it, nor where I found it. Perhaps some of you will know. The line said: "I am not fighting my fight; I am singing my song."

Far be it from me to be a simpering Polyanna. There are disagreeable things in life which can only be dispelled by realizing their true worth and facing them. But I find that as you sally forth in the morning, so will be your whole day. If you go out with an antagonistic stride, tight, shut lips and a sharp, combative eye you will most certainly find plenty of chances to do battle. If you are all set to fight your fight, the world will only too readily take you on for battle. On the other hand, if you go out with a smile and a song on your lips, even tho' the song be faint, and perhaps a bit off key, you are very likely to engender song in the hearts of your associates.

As we have said before, little children are little mirrors and many times a day, when you look at them you can accurately see yourself reflected in their gestures, their speech and their whole attitude toward life.

I can think of two families which illustrate the two types of life philosophy very well. In one family the father eats his breakfast in aggressive crunches of toast, business-like gulps of coffee and casts a stern, unmelting eye over the assembled family. To him business is a grim battle. A fellow can't let go and be pleasant. Hard. That's what he must be—hard as nails. He is fighting his fight.

The mother carries out the same idea in running the home.

And the children reflect both parents. In their play it is a battle to retain possessions, privileges. Little guests must jolly well toe the mark. The children are learning that life is a battle.

The other family seems to succeed in business and the running of the home equally well if not better than the first one. Things go smoother. The father isn't afraid to smile at breakfast. He isn't afraid to go to see his lowest paid clerk when he is ill, and offer assistance. He doesn't fear insubordination upon the lad's return to the office. The mother is sympathetic when the girl [illegible] has a headache, and sends her to bed for an afternoon. And somehow the girl doesn't overstep on this account.

The children radiate smiles, and sympathy. They are gentle with their playmates. Of course, they aren't angels. They quarrel and [illegible] all do.

Children take on so much of our silent attitudes. We need not put our views into words. They get them anyhow. So let's get away from the idea that to live we must fight a fight. It's just as easy to sing a song, if you but try. Say to yourself sometimes: "I am not fighting my fight; I am singing my song."

Bank Heads All Began at Scratch

How Lonsdale and Other A. B. A. Presidents Won Way to Top

By B. C. Forbes

B. C. Forbes

NEW YORK, Oct. 2—Left a poor orphan at six, he will this week be elected president of the American Bankers Association, the highest honor America's bankers can bestow. That is the rise John G. Lonsdale has achieved, fighting every inch of the way single-handedly.

Every one of the last eight presidents of this nation-wide banking organization, by far the most influential financial organization in the whole country, has illustrated ideally the possibilities and opportunities this land offers to the humblest. Not one of the eight was born either to wealth or influence. Each had to struggle to gain a foothold on the bottom of the ladder.

First take Lonsdale. Yellow fever carried off his Tennessee parents; he became a real estate clerk in Hot Springs, Ark.; visioned that a railroad between Hot Springs and Little Rock would be a great thing—and the twenty-year-old youth made his dream come true, much to the amazement of older heads.

Hot Springs attracted visitors of wealth, but many chaffed because they could not keep in touch with the daily doings of the financial world. Young Lonsdale built a direct telegraph wire, opened a brokerage office and prospered unusually. Logan & Bryan induced the brilliant Southern broker to join forces with them, and he became their New York partner. In his early thirties he was earning over $200,000 a year.

From New York he moved to St. Louis as president of the National Bank of Commerce, built it up, and recently merged it into the Mercantile-Commerce Bank and Trust Company, of which he is president. He preferred St. Louis to New York because it would bring him into closer touch with his old Southern friends and—strangely enough—because in an emergency the Lonsdale family encountered great difficulty and delay in finding a baby's nursing bottle in the neighborhood of their Fifth ave. home.

John G. Lonsdale is one of St. Louis' priceless assests. He is called upon to lead almost every worthy public activity, manages somehow to find time to do it—and always has a smile for everyone. He lives in the country and takes an extremely lively interest in agricultural problems.

The retiring president of the A. B. A., Craig B. Hazlewood, was born in East Aurora, N. Y., moved to Chicago, studied diligently as a boy, became a bank clerk, won promotion, and finally became the right-hand man of Melvin A. Traylor, head of the First National Bank of Chicago.

The 1917 president was Thomas R. Preston, who, like Lonsdale, was a Tennessee lad. Possessing no college degree, he nevertheless progressed from a clerkship in a small-town bank to the presidency of an important Chattanooga bank and became so influential a factor in the affairs of his own city and state that he was chosen to lead the activities of America's outstanding banking association.

The career of Mel Traylor, the 1926 president, the Kentucky farm boy, who never rode in a train until he was past 20, was recently sketched in this column when he was selected to go to Europe along with Jackson E. Reynolds of New York to represent the United States in establishing the Bank of International Settlements.

The birthplace of Oscar Wells, the 1925 A. B. A. head, was an old weather-boarded log cabin in the Missouri river bottoms of Platte county, Missouri. He was orphaned when only three. An uncle raised him on a farm. He aspired to a college education, but necessity for earning money cut short his studies. From a clerk's stool in a rural bank he advanced until he finally landed in the presidency of the First National Bank of Birmingham, Ala., which he developed into a very notable and influential institution.

An Irish immigrant lad led America's bankers in 1924, the late and sincerely lamented William E. Knox, one of the most congenial souls who ever lived. From office boy in a New York publishing house, he entered the Bowery Savings Bank as a clerk and ended as its president. One of Mr. Knox's favorite stories narrated how a prospective depositor one day asked to see the president and, said Mr. Knox, "after one glance at me he bolted through the door."

If you didn't have much of a start, either financial or educational, don't worry. Just work.

MONEY'S DROP BRINGS A RISE ON BIG CURB

New York, Oct. 2 (AP)—A drop in the call money rate from 5 to [illegible] per cent stimulated a rally on the Curb market today. After an irregular opening, prices struck a soft spot, but later reversed their trend and headed upward under the leadership of the utilities, especially United Gas Improvement, which soared 12 points.

American & Foreign Power warrants, American Commonwealths Power, Middle West Utilities new and Northern States Power A were prominent in the advance, rising one to about six points. Allied Power & Light and American Cities Power & Light A were easier.

Lehman dipped 1[illegible] points and Goldman Sachs Trading lost one, while Blue Ridge common descended to a new low on a fractional overnight loss.

The oil group developed some strength, Ohio Oil rising about 4 points and Vacuum 1, while Gulf Oil of Pennsylvania improved fractionally. Standard of Indiana was also strong.

Electric Bond Share, reacting at the opening, gained strength with the utilities and moved up about [illegible] points. Electric Investors was also buoyant and jumped 5 as the buying movement got under way.

General Theater Equipment, Dow Chemical, Crocker Wheeler and Aluminum Company of America advanced about 2 points each after the early irregularity had disappeared. Superheater jumped 22 points to a new high.

Massachusetts Gas Companies

To Common Stockholders—

MORE than 85% of Massachusetts Gas Companies Common Stock has been exchanged for Eastern Gas and Fuel Associates 6% Preferred and Common in accordance with the plan dated August 14, 1929.

Deposits are continuing to be received at a rate which indicates that only a nominal amount of this issue will remain outstanding at the expiration date. We again recommend the exchange.

To Preferred Stockholders—

SUBSTANTIALLY more than a majority of Massachusetts Gas Companies 4% Preferred Stock has been exchanged for Eastern Gas and Fuel Associates 4½% Prior Preference.

In view of the larger dividend, earnings, and equity enjoyed by Eastern Gas and Fuel Associates Prior Preference, it is clearly to the advantage of all Massachusetts Gas Companies Preferred Stockholders to make the exchange.

Offer expires OCTOBER 14, 1929

NEWS AND VIEWS OF MODERN HOMES

English Brick House, at $9900

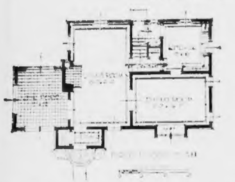
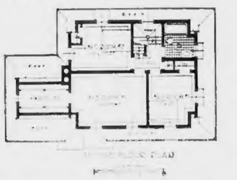
BRICK HOUSE WITH ARCHITECTURAL CHARACTER

By National Modern Homes Bureau, Inc.





BRICK houses in general, and English brick houses in particular, give an appearance that might be termed "satisfying." They carry an air of permanence and dignity, a feeling that the home is well built and will last for generations.

House H. A-114, shown herewith, is of brick on the first story and stucco and weather boards above. The lines of this house are good and the dark shingles and brick are relieved by the stucco gables and entrance.

The treatment of the brick under the dining room window on the front of the house is unusual and adds a touch of character, as does the rough pieces used in the half timber work. The chimney is brick and has a stucco top and squatty pots to cap it off.

The plan is so conceived that a maximum of space is given the rooms. On the first floor one enters into a small vestibule. Thus space that would ordinarily be used for hall space is given over to the living room. There is a large fireplace in this room, where one may enjoy the warmth and glow of the open fire during the cool days, and a small sun porch opens from this room by French doors and makes a cool and restful retreat in summer.

There is a large dining room with an attractive window seat, and a kitchen with every convenience to aid the housewife in her work.

On the second floor is a small hall, from which access is gained to the three bedrooms and the bath. Two of the bedrooms have generous closets and the third has a large wardrobe lighted by a window.

Within and without, the house is at once attractive and compact, giving a maximum of space and charm for the least amount of money expended.

For a proper setting this house should have a lot with a frontage of not less than 58 feet.

Cost about $9900.

COMPLETE working plans and specifications of the house illustrated above may be obtained for a nominal cost from the National Modern Homes Bureau, Inc. Any technical questions regarding this house will be answered without cost or obligation. Address the National Modern Homes Bureau, Inc., 5 Winthrop sq., Boston.

FINE POINTS OF MODERN HOMES

By BETTY BONNELL

Betty Bonnell

YOU'VE had that experience so many times—being invited in the winter or fall to a home that is so nicely done and so well heated only to find that wherever you sat a bothersome draft was sure to get at you.

It's plain that someone had neglected to take care of those clearance cracks at the doors and windows where wind, rain and dust can get into the inside of the home without half trying!

Unless proper steps are taken this condition prevails in even the best built homes, simply because windows require a small clearance in order to open and close, and doors will warp or vary slightly under varying weather conditions. The only answer is efficient weather-stripping, which is one of the best protective investments I can possibly suggest for the liveable home.

Naturally, weatherstripping should be made of durable, non-rusting metal, such as zinc, brass or bronze, and where applied to sliding windows, the loop tongue of the head strip should be made with accurate precision to enter a groove in the sash and make a weather-proof joint.

Where upper and lower frames meet at the center there should be strong interlocking strips, while corrugations on the side strips should not only permit perfect contact but also prevent sliding friction.

For casement windows, I have seen some very efficient types of weather-stripping that I can highly recommend. Strips are tightly nailed to interlock at the head, center and sill, forming an effective seal against outside elements.

In ordering stripping for the front door, be sure that it not only acts as perfect protection, but also that it keeps the threshold attractive. There are any number of styles in solid, highly polished brass that form perfect contact through ingenious interlocking devices.

As for inner doors, one of the best I've seen is a device that allows the strip to rise so as not to interfere with the rugs as you open the door; on closing the door, a felt strip drops silently to hug the floor and stop all drafts.

With your home carefully weather-stripped, you'll find that it's far easier to keep heat in the rooms during winter and thus cut your fuel bills. And as for preventing colds and discomfort caused by drafts—well, need more be said?

LITERATURE on standard materials and products used in the construction of Modern Homes will be sent to you, if you will check the subjects that interest you and mail to the National Modern Homes Bureau, Inc., Real Estate Dept., Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop sq., Boston.

The Kendall Sq. Building Trust was the grantor.

SHOWS RECORD NEW BUILDING

Chicago, Oct. 2—American prosperity is being reflected in a record-breaking volume of new business and industrial construction during the first eight months of 1929 totaling approximately $1,825,000,000, according to a nation-wide survey made public by Young & Becker Co. of Chicago, specialists in real estate and corporate financing.

In addition to this tremendous expenditure, exceeding the huge volume of this type of construction last year by 21 per cent, the survey estimated that another half-billion would be spent on new office, store, theater, hotel, garage and factory buildings before the end of the year, bringing the total to a figure in excess of $2,250,000,000.

While this gain in "prosperity building" has been more than offset by a 35 per cent decline in residential construction, Young & Becker stated that "the entire building industry is today on a more stable basis than ever before—progressing in orderly course marked by sounder investment construction and an absence of speculative building."

An outstanding development of the year, the survey stated, was the announcement of several large investment trusts to invest in the real estate field, and the tendency of commercial builders to turn to stock issues as a means of financing their projects rather than through the sale of bonds and mortgages.

CLOTHES AFIRE, TWO ESCAPE INFERNO

Provincetown, Oct. 2—Two men were burned and another was forced to climb through a skylight to escape a similar fate, here, when fire of undetermined origin ignited a portable gasoline tank that made an inferno of the stockroom of the Provincetown Auto Sales Company.

Fred Strout, 29, and Francis Marshall, 17, mechanics, employed in the building, ran through flames to the street and were badly burned.

Edward Noones, 25, a mechanic, climbed to the ceiling of the stockroom and broke his way through the skylight.

Strout and Marshall, after running into the street, were ordered to lay down on the ground where they were wrapped in clothes and a fire extinguisher used before the flames were put out. Earl and John Paige, who conduct a garage opposite where the fire started, saved the victims from further burning.

According to the men, they heard a hissing noise and turned to find that the floor of the stockroom was afire and the flames were running toward the portable gasoline tank.

Arthur Silva, 36, a salesman, who was in the room, managed to make his getaway before the flames had cut off all possible means of escape. Noones clambered over the stock shelves until he reached a skylight, which he smashed open with his fists. He was badly cut.

Marshall and Strout, knowing they had little time left to do anything for themselves but run, did so. Their clothes became ignited before they reached the street.

Noones was treated for his cuts and Marshall and Strout for second degree burns of the leg, back and forearms.

THIS NEW REVERSIBLE LINDY AVIATION HAT

FREE! to BOYS and GIRLS FREE!

Front view of boy's hat, showing leather.

Boy's hat with corduroy on outside.

Front view of girl's hat showing leather.

Side view of girl's hat with velvet on outside.

Description of Boys' Lindy Hats

Be the first in your neighborhood to wear one of these new Lindy Aviation reversible helmet-hats. This hat is patterned just like helmets aviators wear—yet it has many more features. For instance, you can wear the leather on the outside for a while and then change and wear the corduroy. At all times this Lindy aviation helmet and hat gives you a neat appearance and is suitable for either school or play.

Description of Girls' Lindy Hats

Here's something real chic for the girls. A reversible Lindy aviation hat—leather on one side and velvet on the other. You can wear it to church, school or at play. It's something new, with a tinge of aviation in its design, yet not really an aviation helmet.

This really is a hat for the little miss to wear at all times to all places.

Every girl in New England will be wearing them soon. Be the first in your neighborhood to have one. Set the style—don't follow it.

No matter what your disease may be, remember D. J. Walsh, M. D., will make good the above offer.

EAR TROUBLE

Miss Edna F. Bowles, 50 Fenno St., Revere, Mass., says:—"I had severe pain in my ear. My glands were swollen and painful. Friends told me to see Dr. Walsh. I did so and he told me I had an abscessed ear that was causing all the pain and trouble. His treatment healed the abscess and restored my ears to normal."

Mrs. Dorothy Price, 16 Wamesit Ave., Saugus, Mass., says:—"I had a chronic abscess in my right ear, which was extremely painful, and after it began to discharge it was not so painful but the discharge was very unpleasant. It affected my hearing quite a little. I was treated for it but did not get any relief until I learned of Dr. Walsh through two friends who had been successfully treated by Dr. Walsh and had him treat me. Now the discharge has ceased and my hearing is normal."

LARGEST EVENING
CIRCULATION IN NEW ENGLAND

Halt Capitol Lobbyists

They Pack Congress Committees

THE Senate's investigation of little Mr. Shearer for alleged interference with the purposes of the Geneva disarmament conference has been ridiculous from the start.

The President's denunciation of this insignificant person was equally absurd and the whole situation has smacked of triviality and insincerity.

Why should the Senate go to Geneva and hunt for lobbyists when Washington is full of them and they swarm in the corridors of the Capitol, in the anterooms of the Senate, and even in the committee rooms, where they sit as advisers of the senatorial committees in the interests of the big industries and financial institutions which these lobbyists represent?

These statements are not surmise. They are proven facts. In fact, they are confessed facts.

So if the Senate is sincere and the President is sincere and genuinely anxious to investigate the evil of lobbying and lobbyists which are corrupting the very core of our government at Washington, let the President and the Senate come back from Geneva and turn their attention to the corridors and the committee rooms of the Capitol, and even the antechambers of the White House here at home.

Mr. Shearer is not important in himself, or in the utmost of his personal influence, but he will be important to Congress and the country if the investigation of his feeble activities shall lead to a genuine and honest investigation of the mass of lobbyists that swarm in Washington through the hall of Congress and in every government department like maggots in a rotten cheese.

Mr. Shearer himself is unimportant and the investigation of him, ridiculous at all times, became contemptible when the Senate committee allowed an irresponsible newspaper reporter to get on the stand and attack the honor of the admirals of our navy.

These admirals did nothing more and nothing less than their duty in trying to prevent our diplomats from being hoodwinked by shrewder and abler European diplomatists, and in trying to prevent our navy from again being sacrificed and our ships destroyed as they had been at the conference at Washington which Secretary Hughes and Senator Borah engineered in 1927.

Must our admirals be traitors to their country in order to satisfy the spineless pacifists in the Senate? Must they agree to every program which shrewd, foreign statesmen are endeavoring to impose upon this country, which they fear and hate?

Must our admirals sacrifice the interest of their own navy and the welfare of our own people which that navy protects?

The Senate investigating committe has been a laughing stock up to date. It will be something worse than that if it does not give some evidence of intelligence and patriotism, some indication of sincerity of purpose and loyalty to the public.

Let the committee be empowered to do something worthy of the dignity of the Senate.

Let Congress give convincing evidence of a genuine determination to investigate and eradicate lobbyists and lobbying.

The people of this country are becoming impatient of the government at Washington and of the party in power which controls the government and which harbors so many cranks and so many frauds, so many spineless pacifists and brainless prohibitionists. So many quakers and shakers and fakers and tactless trouble-makers.

Unless Congress acts vigorously to show some sound sense and sincerity in the public interest, the people should elect, and will elect, a progressive Democratic Congress at the next election.

It is time that in our representative form of government we had a government at Washington which actually represents the citizenship.

Poor Summer Visitors

Hurry Away From a New England at Its Best

According to the almanac, Summer begins on the 21st day of June and ends on the 21st of September, but when on Labor Day you see everyone around you packing up you begin to lose faith in the almanac maker.

There is no stopping them. Labor Day means "go," and they start.

Being a man of good will, you are tempted to throw your arms around the visitor from the Middle West and say, "See here, old man, you haven't BEGUN to see New England. I don't know whether you CAME too early—June has a way of being most uncertain—but you ARE leaving too soon!"

You really don't do or say anything of the sort. Perhaps it is quite as well. The idea seems fixed in the American mind that the season ends with the advent of September.

Hotel and resort men have been grumbling about it for years. Now, they intend, or at least Maine and New Hampshire men intend, to DO something. They introduced a resolution last week at the annual convention of the American Hotel Association in Detroit pledging the influence of the organization to a movement looking to the celebration of Labor Day on the THIRD, instead of the FIRST, Monday of September.

Mr. N. P. M. Jacobs, of the Hotel Rockingham at Portsmouth, feels assured, he says, that organized labor will not stand in the way. There is NO suggestion, according to Mr. Jacobs, that the SCHOOL year will be affected.

There are thousands of persons, the Portsmouth man believes, who do not have to meet the school problem but who hurry away on the first Monday of the ninth month because it is the "custom."

Mr. Jacobs may be in error about that and we fear he is. It has been our observation that at the beach the bottom drops out of everything when the school bells ring.

If the gentleman is right—and we hope he is—it seems to be nothing more than a task for the advertising committees. Get New England's message to the thousands who are not interested in or affected by the school problem. Let them KNOW what they're missing.

The BAER Facts

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

New York, Oct. 2—Al Smith is building the largest office building in the world.

It's over 900 feet taller than the White House.

Al will have a bungalow on the roof. It will give Al a better view of the South and the West than he got in 1928.

The office buildings of New York are rather complicated. Every elevator is an endurance test and every office boy wears a non-stop frown.

We tried to get in to see the president of a big corporation the other day. The first thing you notice about a suite of offices is that the front door is incorporated.

The second thing you pipe is a big, jolly waste basket marked, "Welcome Stranger."

The furniture consists of a desk inhabited by a man whose grandmother must have been a Robot.

Every big executive has his floor space divided up into 30 rooms separated by frosted partitions. The density of population is about three vice-presidents to a coop.

You are stopped in every room by a needle-nosed investigator who wants to know how you escaped the flu epidemic of 1920.

At the end of the mystic maze is the man you want to see.

By the time they stop shunting you from office to office you feel like one of those little lead bullets in pigs-in-clover.

You never get in to see the president of the corporation, because he is either out to lunch or in executive session with another president who hasn't anything to do, either.

We don't know why they build offices so tall. They could make those buildings shorter and be much busier.

Some day we hope to get back to a one-story town, where they do everything on the ground floor within easy jumping distance of the turnpike.

We know a town like that in Illinois. There isn't a two-story shack in the burg. There was one many years ago; but it was a saloon. It still is.

We want to go back to that one-story town and die, which shouldn't take more than a week or so.

To make it worse, the revolving door season is on "when every man's hand is raised against his neighbor trying to go the other way.

After a winter in a revolving door, you celebrate the advent of spring by picking peanuts off the ground just like a squirrel.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

THEY say long skirts are coming in again. Thank Heaven! It certainly will be a big relief to a lot of us adult females.

I've had a peeve all summer. It began with the first hot day. Says I to myself. "I'll get something cool." So I hied me to the nearest ladies' wear and stated my needs. Now, my needs are plenty. I'm no trick runabout. I'm a limousine model, and I've covered considerable mileage since I got underway in the nineties. I need upholstery that's seasoned and substantial as befits my girth and record. All of which I explained to the saleslady, who listened with the usual glassy stare. When I was through she oozed away and presently poured herself back with an armful of something that looked like fancy covers for bird cages.

"Migosh!" I said. "What's that? I wanted a dress. For me—myself."

"These," snipped she, "are your size."

"Maybe they are, girlie," says I, "but they're not my nature. No one's going to see me dressed like that, unless it's on a slab. Now, what I want is something plain and darkish and matronly."

The saleslady gave me that pitying stare one reserves for idiots and five-legged calves.

"We have," said she, "no matronly styles—there is no demand for them."

No demand for matrons. I guess she's right, but I get mad every time I think about it. THIS RAGE FOR YOUTH HAS ACTUALLY MADE MATURITY A MISDEMEANOR! We may have married ladies, but try and detect 'em. The shady side of forty is no longer shady. It is all lit up with short socks, beach rompers, sun suits, melba toast, lip stick, wind blown bobs, mask o' youth and swillowy silhouettes. It's the age of the Kutie Kid, and though mama may be fifty, with a displacement of 225, she's got to toddle right along.

IF YOU DON'T LOOK LIKE A SPRING FRYER NOWDAYS YOU'RE A FLOP.

And it isn't only the clothes. We've got to think, talk and act the part as well. Your heart may be dark with sorrow, Sister Kate, and your head heavy with wisdom, BUT YOU'VE SIMPLY GOT TO ACT COLLEGIATE OR BE JUNKED.

Well, I, for one have gone on a strike against the whole silly business. I've lived forty-six lively years, packed chuck full of experience, and I'm not going to let a lot of fashion designers hornswaggle me out of the benefits thereof. I refuse to look or act like a pee-wee. I'M GOING TO BE MY AGE! It's the grandest age I've ever lived. It has taken me sixteen thousand four hundred and twenty-five days to arrive at this age and it was worth 'em all. There's more punch in one thought after forty—provided, of course, that you know how to think—than there is in a whole year of pup speculation at twenty. There's more to be seen and at last you know how to see it. And what if you have a little more beneath the belt than you once had . . . if at the same time you have a lot more above the ears?

For which reason, I'm tickled pink that long skirts and other grown up clothes are coming back. Now maybe adults will be a la mode once more.

Stars Form Islands

By ARCHIBALD HENDERSON

THROUGHOUT the centuries man has been scrutinizing the heavens as if it were all a part of a single universe. Our galaxy, with its hundreds of millions of stars, is a sort of unit; it holds together. We think of it as a vast cosmic unit which has not yet settled down into the relatively steady state of the globular clusters. The sun, for example, is moving about four hundred million miles per year with reference to the stars now in its part of the galaxy.

Within recent years astronomers have been turning their attention to curious objects called spiral nebulae, like giant pinwheels whirling amid the fireworks of the stars. But are they among the stars? Perhaps they lie far beyond. So gigantic are the distances involved that the human mind recoils from the consideration of such immensity. But it is becoming increasingly evident that these fascinating objects are indeed other galaxies. Take the Andromeda nebula, one of the most beautiful and interesting of the heavenly bodies. This object is relatively "near" the earth as compared with many other spiral nebulae. Yet it takes a ray of light from the Andromeda nebula at least eight hundred and fifty thousand years to reach us.

This galaxy is similar to our own in its disk-like shape as wonderful photographs taken edge-on clearly show. Moreover it is a galaxy similar to our own in shape and size, and composed of a comparable number of suns. There is little reason now to doubt that our universe is a spiral nebula. If, for example, we compare the nebula in Canes Venatici with our own galaxy, we find in both a double streaming in the central portion. And we know that the nebula in Canes Venatici is a spiral facing towards us, its shape irresistibly suggesting motions along the spiral arms.

Primitive nebulae are great patches of fire-mist. Under the action of gravity, and perhaps other forces the nature of which we can only conjecture, these "fire mists" very gradually condensed around centers of greatest density. A slow rotatory motion would begin and gigantic gaseous streamers would be thrown off. In time the whole structure would form a spiral, having a dense region at its center and masses of condensed matter along its spiral arms.

The human mind staggers under the realization that there are certainly hundreds of thousands of these spiral nebulae. They are probably all exterior galaxies, outside of ours.

The mind of man is restless with its avid and unceasing speculation. The question which arises is: "Are these galaxies independent of each other? From the minutest forms of matter up to our own galaxy, there is a traceable connection and intercommunication. Does this process continue with higher forms?"

The answer is, "In all probability, yes." It is a reasonable hypothesis that innumeral galaxies are the constituent parts of a super-galaxy.

A Suggestion for Airplane Builders

Study the Bee's Wings

(Copyright, 1929)

VIBRATION INSTEAD OF WING-SPREAD.

MODERN photography, with a "shutter" of tremendous speed, makes it possible to photograph this bee in flight.

Young Americans with interest in airplanes and a tendency toward "invention" may study the flying bee with profit.

The bee's wing which seems in the picture to be at rest, is in reality beating the air 3000 times a second.

Such terrific power in so small a creature seems impossible. Nevertheless you are told that it is so.

Only the speed of light utilized by the camera makes it possible to photograph the wing of the bee as it flies toward the hive.

What interests the young inventor and airplane builder is the fact that high speed beating of the wing makes a WIDE wing spread unnecessary.

It is as though two small wings attached to a freight car could carry it through the air.

In airplane construction men have imitated birds with WIDE spreading wings.

Men always imitate Nature in the beginning, finally get away from it, and IMPROVE on Nature.

A wide wing spread offering resistance to the air might be diminished, assuming that the necessary power can be provided, by terrifically high speed. That is done in such planes as recently competed for the Schneider Cup, making more than 350 miles an hour.

Those planes, small, almost bullet shaped, carry little wing spread. The wings, unlike those of the bee, do not move, of course. But intensively rapid motion of the propeller takes the place of the motion of the bee's wings.

If the bee was able to solve his problem in this way millions of years ago, long before there were any men on earth, men with the power of electricity and exploding gases at their command, should do things much more wonderful.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. M'INTYRE

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Oct. 2—The metropolis has an army of old wattled codgers doddering along the primrose path and trying to have the last fling without gossip. They patronize those "clubs" where "the board of governors" go into executive session and elect you to membership as quick as that.

They are never seen after dusk, their play hours beginning at lunch time and lasting until time to go home for dinner. Thus it is possible for vibrant young girls for whom they provide food and cocktails to devote their evenings to particular now friends.

New York has so many attractive lassies who must always be going somewhere and seeing things that antiquated Romeos with plenty of money have no trouble finding the light hearted companionship they crave. Among the merry wags such girls are called "fossil filchers."

Most of them are a type peculiar to New York. They are girls from good homes, well educated and bright conversationalists who have no compunction whatever in exchanging a little flattery or taxicab handholding for a filling lunch, well lubricated, in the glitter of a de luxe speakeasy.

After all the venerable saps must scurry home, climb into carpet slippers and rattle the newspaper grouchily just when New York is going gay. In the meantime, ladies with nothing to do have been provided a pleasant interlude. And that's that.

In the East Fifties are at least a dozen of the private mansion grog shops which seem to specialize in the December and May attachments. Between 12 and 1 fluffy young things are popping out of taxicabs, wearing orchid corsages, to meet their withered cavaliers.

They hang to their arms, coo, flick imaginary fluff off coat lapels, bestow whispered nothings, and otherwise appear in the throes of a great romance. It is good acting and the old boys are lucky not to fall into more designing hands.

Bud Fisher, the cartoonist, has the distinction of being the only yacht purchaser to leave a new boat flat and never see it again. The day after he became owner he started on a cruise, but, displeased with his captain, put in at a port and fired him and his crew. He hired a local seaman—the fact he wore a duck of a plug hat having a mighty appeal. Several hours after they steamed out, the new captain miscalculated the clearance of a bridge and the top part of the cabin was raked into the water. Bud shoved for land in a skiff and never laid eyes on the vessel or inquired about it since. He had his fill.

One reason for the shrinkage in interest and also in the number of vaudeville houses may be gleaned from what I saw in one the other night. Those who arrived late were pointed out by a low comedian and spot-lighted. As they took their seats, the orchestra crashed that "Gentlemen be seated!" ta-da-a-a! People paying to see shows and made the targets for such discourtesy are not likely to repeat the visit.

Kidding customers was the final straw that broke the camel's back in the night club debacle. Customers laughing loudest when hailed as "Hello, Sucker!" are the ones who never went back. Barnum fooled the public—but he never ridiculed it. And he was the greatest showman of them all.

Those who declared prohibition would be a kick in the pants for hotel building are thinking up something else. "Bigger and better" hotels are going up in New York now than at any period in history. Inns flourishing 20 years ago are being torn down for more elaborate structures. The loss of bar revenue has been more than made up in slicing up fronts for shops and stores. Three big hotels cover all expenses in sub-rentals. Thus gross receipts are clear profit.

RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALINE MICHAELIS

DO you give certain persons the impression that you agree with them and then ridicule their opinions to others?

Why do this?

Is it because you don't want to make the effort to express an adverse opinion and hold up your argument for it? Or is it that you want to be popular?

Is it a fair or manly thing to do?

If you think that a person is expressing ideas and making statements that are ridiculous, should you not make your ideas known to that effect? Why should you try to agree with every person you meet?

This practice weakens your power to think and sets you down as a jelly fish.

If you have convictions why not express and stand by them?

Why be so deceitful as to apparently support the opinions of others at whom you later laugh? Perhaps you think anything that you might say could not alter or change the ideas of those whom you have heard.
